Bosnia and the Destruction of Cultural Heritage 2015-04-28 the massive intentional destruction of cultural heritage during the 1992-1995 Bosnian war targeting a historically diverse identity provoked global condemnation and became a seminal marker in the discourse on cultural heritage. It prompted an urgent reassessment of how cultural property could be protected in times of conflict and led to a more definitive recognition in international humanitarian law that destruction of a people's cultural heritage is an aspect of genocide. Yet surprisingly little has been published on the subject. This wide-ranging book provides the first comprehensive overview and critical analysis of the destruction of Bosnia and Herzegovina's cultural heritage and its far-reaching impact. Scrutinizing the responses of the international community during the war, including bodies like UNESCO and the Council of Europe, the volume also analyses how, after the conflict ended, external agendas impinged on heritage reconstruction to the detriment of the broader peace process and refugee return. It assesses implementation of Annex 8 of the Dayton Peace Agreement, a unique attempt to address the devastation to Bosnia's cultural heritage, and examines the treatment of war crimes involving cultural property at the International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (ICTY) with numerous case studies and plentiful illustrations. This important volume considers questions which have moved to the foreground with the inclusion of cultural heritage preservation in discussions of the right to culture in human rights discourse and as a vital element of post-conflict and development aid.

US Department of State Dispatch 1993 contains a diverse compilation of major speeches, congressional testimony, policy statements, fact sheets, and other foreign policy information from the State Dept.

The Triggering Procedure of the International Criminal Court 2005-10-01 The Rome Statute, unlike the statutes of the International Criminal Tribunals for the former Yugoslavia and for Rwanda, creates a permanent court whose dormant jurisdiction covers the territory and includes the nationals of states parties and is universal in cases where the Security Council makes a referral. Besides, unlike the ad hoc tribunals which have jurisdiction over specific crisis situations whose personal, territorial, and temporal parameters have been defined in their respective statutes by the UN Security Council, in the case of the ICC it is not possible to determine a priori in which situations the ICC will be involved. As a result, the most relevant activity of the court is the determination of those situations regarding which the dormant jurisdiction of the court will be triggered. The book, The Triggering Procedure of the International Criminal Court, constitutes the first comprehensive analysis of the proceedings that prior to any criminal investigation aim to make such a fundamental determination.

Hybrid and Internationalised Criminal Tribunals 2012-04-02 In recent years a number of criminal tribunals have been established to investigate, prosecute, and try individuals accused of serious violations of international humanitarian law and international human rights law. These tribunals have been described as hybrid or internationalised tribunals as their structure and applicable law consist of both international and national elements. Six such tribunals are currently in operation: the Special Court for Sierra Leone, the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia, the International Judges and Prosecutors Programme in Kosovo, the War Crimes Chamber for Bosnia and Herzegovina, the Iraqi High Tribunal, and the Special Tribunal for Lebanon. The special panels for serious crimes in East Timor suspended operation in May 2005, although there continues to be some international involvement in investigation and prosecution of serious crimes. Suggestions have also been made that this model of tribunal would be appropriate for the prosecution of atrocities committed in, among others, Burundi, the Sudan, the Democratic Republic of Congo, Kenya, and Liberia, as well as for a wider range of international crimes, most recently piracy. The key aims of this book are to place the model of hybrid and internationalised tribunals in the context of other mechanisms to try international crimes; to examine the increasing demand for the establishment of hybrid and internationalised judicial institutions; and the factors driving such demand. To define the category of hybrid and internationalised tribunals by examining the key features of the existing and proposed hybrid or internationalised tribunals, as well as the features of those institutions with international elements that are generally excluded from this category, to determine the legal and jurisdictional bases of existing hybrid and internationalised tribunals, to analyse how the legal and jurisdictional basis of a tribunal affects other issues such as the applicable law, the application of amnesties and immunities, and the relationship of the tribunal with the host state, third states, national courts, and other international criminal tribunals, the book concentrates on the definitional, legal, and jurisdictional aspects of hybrid and internationalised criminal tribunals, as this has been the subject of some confusion in arguments before the tribunals and in the judgments of the tribunals in its concluding section the book examines the future role of internationalised and hybrid criminal tribunals particularly in light of the establishment of the icc and the potential use of such tribunals in other contexts it also assesses how hybrid and internationalised tribunals fit into a multi layered framework of international criminal law and transitional justice
