nations around the world are experiencing a spectacular increase in longevity society as a whole is being challenged by issues arising from this revolution in longevity although the specter of the loneliness and existential suffering of older citizens is such that some people under the age of 65 find it difficult to conceive of a long term future persons over 85 have proven that aging does not necessarily preclude a healthy and productive life extraordinary progress in both curative and preventive medicine justifies optimism about the quality of life and state of well being that can be enjoyed even in great old age we should look to professionals in diverse fields to develop creative solutions to the inevitable issues that will arise with aging governments must prepare for the future health of their citizens by making long term investments to educate all sectors of society in the value of good nutrition exercise and lifestyles that enhance well being throughout life also governments should realize that the main cause of health care expenditure is serious illness which occurs in persons of all ages and not predominantly in older people early detection can help save lives as well health and longevity of life will ultimately end as a political issue what is needed is long term government investments necessary for a viable health policy the question arises will world leaders be able to commit to such a policy two major socioeconomic phenomena may have a regulating effect on this issue the first is the emergence of pressure groups that have come into being in response to a particular health issue such as aids the second is the emergence of ethics committees in developed nations that deal solely with health issues on october 16 and 17 2000 we hosted an international workshop entitled statistical design measurement and analysis of health related quality of life the workshop was held in the beautiful city of arradon south brittany france with the main goal of fostering an interdisciplinary forum for discussion of theoretical and applied statistical issues arising in studies of health related quality of life hrqol included were biostatisticians psychometricians and public health professionals e g physicians sociologists psychologists active in the study of hrqol in assembling this volume we invited each conference participant to contribute a paper based on his or her presentation and the ensuing and very interesting discussions that took place in arradon all papers were peer reviewed by anonymous reviewers and revised before final editing and acceptance although this process was quite time consuming we believe that it greatly improved the volume as a whole making this book a valuable contribution to the field of hrqol research the volume presents a broad spectrum of papers presented at the workshop and thus illustrates the range of current research related to the theory methods and applications of hrqol as well as the interdisciplinary nature of this work following an introduction written by sir david cox it includes 27 articles organized into the following chapters
