from oaxacan wood carvings to dessert kitchens in provincial france critical craft presents thirteen ethnographies which examine what defines and makes craft in a wide variety of practices from around the world challenging the conventional understanding of craft as a survival a revival or something that resists capitalism the book turns instead to the designers diy enthusiasts traditional artisans and technical programmers who consider their labor to be craft in order to comprehend how they make sense of it the authors ethnographic studies focus on the individuals and communities who claim a practice as their own bypassing the question of craft survival to ask how and why activities termed craft are mobilized and reproduced moving beyond regional studies of heritage artisanship the authors suggest that ideas of craft are by definition part of a larger cosmopolitan dialogue of power and identity by paying careful attention to these sometimes conflicting voices this collection shows that there is great flexibility in terms of which activities are labelled craft in fact there are many related ideas of craft and these shape distinct engagements with materials people and the economy case studies from countries including mexico nigeria india taiwan the philippines and france draw together evidence based on linguistics microsociology and participant observation to explore the shifting terrain on which those engaged in craft are operating what emerges is a fascinating picture which shows how claims about craft are an integral part of contemporary global change from war to peace tells the story of the adaptation from white ensign to red ensign and to flags of other nations of the numerous classes of naval ships mainly built during the two world wars and surplus to requirements with the advent of peace it also describes ships sourced from the united states navy and elsewhere that were converted for commercial use the most successful classes to transfer to the merchant service were the hunt class minesweepers of the great war landing craft tank the salvage tugs of world war two and the wooden hulled fairmile launches which became familiar at seaside resorts in the 1950s and 60s and of course the mfv classes that helped the fishing industry in the postwar years the story includes the successful commercial conversions of many of the flower and castle class corvettes and river class frigates notably the 1954 conversion of hmcs stormont to a luxury yacht for the greek shipping magnate onassis it describes why hms charybdis became a passenger liner in the great war and how hms albatross nearly became a luxury liner after world war two but in fact was transformed into a very unpopular emigrant ship and ended her days as a floating casino based at cape town the author reveals the military antecedents of numerous commercial vessels that many would have thought were built especially for the service that they later maintained and it illustrates just how many royal navy vessels ended up in private ownership and the question is asked if the military had not built so many ships that were eminently suitable for commercial adaptation would the technical development of merchant shipping have progressed at a faster rate than it did the answer is a definite no and is illustrated in several ways it was former naval vessels that promoted the early development of the ro ro ferry former naval ships introduced numerous design innovations for example the raised foredeck common for so many years on salvage tugs and above all stripped of their military hardware ex naval ships provided opportunities for modest investment where otherwise there would have been none copiously illustrated throughout the book tells a fascinating story of invention and ingenious ship conversion and of pragmatic adaptation in the financially stringent years after two world wars
