around the beginning of the common era indian buddhists began to collect fables or jataka tales illuminating various human virtues and foibles from kindness cooperation loyalty and self discipline on the one hand to greed pride foolishness and treachery on the other instead of populating these stories with people they cast the animals of their immediate environment in the leading roles which may have given the tales a universal appeal that helped them travel around the world surfacing in the middle east as aesop s fables and in various other guises throughout east and southeast asia africa russia and europe author and painter mark mcginnis has collected over forty of these hallowed popular tales and retold them in vividly poetic yet accessible language their original buddhist messages firmly intact each story is accompanied with a beautifully rendered full color painting making this an equally attractive book for children and adults whether buddhist or not who love fine stories about their fellow wise and foolish creatures lakota and dakota animal wisdom stories is a compilation of twelve traditional northern plains native american stories retold by dakota storyteller pamela greenhill kaizen and are accompanied by twelve full color illustrations by south dakota artist and educator mark w mcginnis leonard r bruguier a descendant of the yankton chiefs war eagle and struck by the ree presents the introduction the stories use animal characters to deal with the themes of compassion greed generosity protection survival hard work laziness bravery foolishness trickery and others they range from simple humor as in the frog and the turtle brothers where two close friends decide to jump in the lake rather than catch colds by getting wet in the rain to the rich and complex story of the crane which weaves a tale of compassion and caring for one s neighbors the animal characters give insightful guidance on human morals and ethics and give a glimpse into the wonderful wit and wisdom of the lakota and dakota people mark mcginnis paintings interpret a critical instant from each story translating the oral moment to a visual expression of color texture and shapes this book is well suited to be read to younger children to be read by older children or for adults who enjoy new perspectives into native american culture available for 11 98 plus 3 00 s h from tipi press st teacher who is interested in inspiring students to use yoga and mindfulness practices to maintain social emotional wellness in the classroom at the beginning of the twentieth century the wild animal story emerged in canadian literature as a distinct genre in which animals pursue their own interests survival for themselves their offspring and perhaps a mate or the pure pleasure of their wildness bringing together some of the most celebrated wild animal stories ralph h lutts places them firmly in the context of heated controversies about animal intelligence and purposeful behavior widely regarded as entertaining and educational the early stories by charles g d roberts ernest thompson seton john muir jack london and others had an avid readership among adults and children but some naturalists and at least one hunter theodore roosevelt discredited these writers as nature fakers accusing them of falsely portraying animal behavior the stories and commentaries collected here span the twentieth century as present day animal behaviorists psychologists and the public attempt to sort out the meaning of what animals do and our obligations to them ralph lutts maps some of the prominent features of our cultural landscape tales include the springfield fox by ernest thompson seton the sounding of the call by jack london stickeen by john muir journey to the sea by rachel carson other selections include essays by theodore roosevelt john burroughs margaret atwood and ralph h lutts postamble anita curtis book offers heartwarming true stories of human contact with animals
