practice in ways that are healthier for both patients and practitioners the books provide a welcome antidote to demoralisation and burn out amongst practitioners reversing cynicism and reviving our feeling of pride in and our understanding of health practice by observing practice life through different lenses they encourage the development of efficiency effectiveness and above all satisfaction the third book in the series the integrated practitioner turning tyrants into tools in health practice explores the relationship between practitioners and their tangible external tools such as time computers money information colleagues equipment targets and office spaces along with less tangible elements like knowledge understanding language values and beliefs these tools can be of great benefit when fully integrated and balanced but they often end up controlling practitioners dictating the manner in which the practice operates and ultimately reducing efficacy it suggests ways for practitioners to harness the positive forces of these tools and regain control brilliantly written practitioners students and trainees and gp trainers will find the enlightening witty conversational style a joy to read medical law and ethics are frequently referred to in conjunction and appear together in many textbooks but do they combine to form a cohesive unit and do they benefit each other it may be argued that they do not but rather suffer a symbiotic relationship clashing rather than cooperating this book examines this relationship and how the law sees medical ethics it then considers whether medical ethics functions in the way that the law thinks that it does after providing a historical perspective that identifies medical ethics discourse as disjointed and fragmented the book continues by examining key medico legal case law and reports that have an inherent ethical content for clues as to how they define medical ethics and its role it also considers how medical ethics sees the law concluding that a misapprehension by each party as to what the other does creates a mutually harmful relationship between them
