The Craft of Fiction 2019-11-25 unconventions is a quirky and provocative miscellany that reveals michael martone s protean interests as a writer and a writing teacher martone has shall we say a problem with authority his chief pleasure in knowing the rules of his vocation comes from trying out new ways to bend blend or otherwise defy them the pieces gathered in unconventions are drawn from a long career spent loosening the creative strictures on writing including articles public addresses essays interviews and even a eulogy these writings vary greatly in form but are unified in addressing the many technical and artistic issues that face all writers particularly those interested in experimental and nontraditional modes and forms martone s approach has always been to synthesize to understand and use any technique formula or style available i find myself then he writes self identifying as a formalist both and neither an experimenter and or a traditionalist in i love a parade an afterword martone writes about not fitting in and loving it as he recalls the time he marched alone in a local labor day parade as a one person delegation from the national writers union elsewhere in writings formally stylistically purposely at odds with themselves martone s expansive curiosity is on full display we learn about camouflage techniques how a baby acquires language how to read a wpa era post office mural and why martone sold his stock in the new yorker and reinvested his money in the company that makes etch a sketch unconventions then is martone s frankensteinian monster a kind of unruly hybrid spawn of the mainstream writing enterprise writing seems to me an intrinsic pleasure an end in itself first says martone the question for me is not whether my writing or any piece of writing is good or bad but what the writing is and what it is doing and how finally it is used or can be used by others
