research paper undergraduate from the year 2015 in the subject medicine gynecology andrology grade a university of manchester hcri course global health language english abstract the world health organization defines unsafe abortion as a procedure for terminating a pregnancy that is performed by an individual lacking the necessary skills or in an environment that does not conform to minimal medical standards or both unsafe abortion is common in places where abortion is illegal every year almost 44 000 abortions occur globally and nearly half of them are unsafe whereby almost all unsafe abortions 98 percent are happening in developing countries in countries where abortion remains unsafe it is a leading cause of maternal mortality according to the who unsafe abortions contribute to 13 of all maternal mortality globally and are direct cause of maternal mortality in sub saharan africa when comparing women with their counterpart men in sexual and reproductive health there is no such a high cause of mortality in men this difference shows the existent gender inequality in most developing countries in these settings women are denied access to information education on safe sex contraception and are not offered an informed consent on their fertility choices gender based violence is one of the contributing factor to this inequality that women suffer and this affect their potential development and enjoyment of their right to health including their right to sexual and reproductive health these universal rights legitimate women to choose whether to conceive or when to form a family this should have not been difficult to achieve in a world with so much technologies of modern effective contraceptive methods and the issue of unsafe abortion and its complications could be averted conversely this is not the case in the context where legal structures should determine the fate of those who should make decisions for their own lives the legalization or non legalization of termination of pregnancy has been a battle ground for centuries in many countries across the globe with different variations in the trends of abortion legal frameworks in this essay i will discuss why unsafe abortion is perceived as neglected globally and evaluate the extent to which human rights based approach can be useful to mitigate this public health problem and conclude with my personal view on this issue this paper is an evaluation of recent published research on aspects of abortion related to women s health and wellbeing both in australia and overseas and in developed countries in which abortion is legal this research has been compiled for the purpose of generating informed debate about how abortion is praticed given that abortion is a complex issue and that the committee s remit is to examine scientific and technological issues the committee explicitly ruled out looking at ethical or moral aspects of abortion in the published terms of reference for their inquiry therefore this report focuses on scientific and medical developments relating to the law on abortion particularly developments since 1990 when evidence of improved outcomes for very premature neonates led to a reappraisal of the threshold of foetal viability and the reduction of the then 28 week limit on most abortions to the current 24 week limit the report considers the key issues that have emerged and where it is felt appropriate and justified the committee draws conclusions about what the science and medical evidence currently before us indicates however because it is recognised that science and medical evidence is only one of many factors that are taken into account when legislating on this issue the committee does not make any recommendations as to how mps should vote on abortion law a minority report written by two committee members is included as formal minutes to the report

opinions informative charts and in depth sidebars highlight important facts about this controversial topic and a list of discussion questions is included to give them a starting point for further debate and guided thinking about this complex issue abortion care as moral work brings together the voices of abortion providers abortion counselors clinic owners neonatologists bioethicists and historians to discuss how and why providing abortion care is moral work the collection offers voices not usually heard as clinicians talk about their work and their thoughts about life and death in four subsections providers clinics conscience and the fetus the contributions in this anthology explore the historical context and present day challenges to the delivery of abortion care contributing authors address the motivations that lead abortion providers to offer abortion care discuss the ways in which anti abortion regulations have made it increasingly difficult to offer feminist inspired services and ponder the status of the fetus and the ethical frameworks supporting abortion care and fetal research together these essays provide a feminist moral foundation to reassert that abortion care is moral work when henry morgentaler canada s best known abortion rights advocate died in 2013 activists and scholars began to reassess the state of abortion in the country in this volume some of canada s foremost researchers challenge current thinking about abortion by revealing the discrepancy between what Canadians believe the law to be after the 1988 morgentaler decision and what people are experiencing on the ground showcasing new theoretical frameworks and approaches from law history medicine women s studies and political science these timely essays reveal the diversity of abortion experiences across the country past and present and make a case for shifting the debate from abortion rights to reproductive justice biography of the abortion act exploring how it was shaped by and shaped a changing uk india was a pioneer in legalizing induced abortion or medical termination of pregnancy mtp in 1971 yet after three decades morbidity and mortality due to unsafe abortion remain a serious problem there is little public debate on the issue despite several national campaigns on safe motherhood instead discussion on abortion has mainly centred around declining sex ratio sex selective abortion and the proliferation of abortion clinics in urban areas adding to the problem is that abortion continues to be a sensitive private matter often with ethical moral religious connotations that sets it apart from other reproductive health seeking behaviour this book fills a gap in our understanding of the ground realities with respect to induced abortion in india to create an evidence based body of knowledge using both quantitative and qualitative research methods the case studies show why and under what circumstances women seek abortion and the quality of services available to them they also explore inter generational differences in attitudes and practices the perceptions and selection of providers female selective abortion and informal abortion practitioners among other issues the contributors show that strong preference

Abortion 1976

India was a pioneer in legalizing induced abortion or medical termination of pregnancy (MTP) in 1971. Yet after three decades, morbidity and mortality due to unsafe abortion remain a serious problem. There is little public debate on the issue despite several national campaigns on safe motherhood. Instead, discussion on abortion has mainly centred around declining sex ratio, sex selective abortion, and the proliferation of abortion clinics in urban areas. Adding to the problem is that abortion continues to be a sensitive private matter, often with ethical, moral, and religious connotations that sets it apart from other reproductive health-seeking behaviour. This book fills a gap in our understanding of the ground realities with respect to induced abortion in India. To create an evidence-based body of knowledge, using both quantitative and qualitative research methods, the case studies show why and under what circumstances women seek abortion and the quality of services available to them. They also explore inter-generational differences in attitudes and practices, the perceptions and selection of providers, female selective abortion, and informal abortion practitioners. Among other issues, the contributors show that strong preference for sons, availability of modern techniques for diagnostic tests, widespread acceptance of the small family norm, and heavy reliance on female sterilisation as the primary method of contraception lead women to abort unwanted pregnancies. A book that goes
