students and the public routinely consult various published college rankings to assess the quality of colleges and universities and easily compare different schools however many institutions have responded to the rankings in ways that benefit neither the schools nor their students in engines of anxiety sociologists wendy espeland and michael sauder delve deep into the mechanisms of law school rankings which have become a top priority within legal education based on a wealth of observational data and over 200 in depth interviews with law students university deans and other administrators they show how the scramble for high rankings has affected the missions and practices of many law schools engines of anxiety tracks how rankings such as those published annually by the u s news world report permeate every aspect of legal education beginning with the admissions process the authors find that prospective law students not only rely heavily on such rankings to evaluate school quality but also internalize rankings as expressions of their own abilities and flaws for example they often view rejections from first tier schools as a sign of personal failure the rankings also affect the decisions of admissions officers who try to balance admitting diverse classes with preserving the school s ranking which is dependent on factors such as the median lsat score of the entering class espeland and sauder find that law schools face pressure to admit applicants with high test scores over lower scoring candidates who possess other favorable credentials engines of anxiety also reveals how rankings have influenced law schools career service departments because graduates job placements play a major role in the rankings many institutions have shifted their career services resources toward tracking placements and away from counseling and network building in turn law firms regularly use school rankings to recruit and screen job candidates perpetuating a cycle in which highly ranked schools enjoy increasing prestige as a result the rankings create and reinforce a rigid hierarchy that penalizes lower tier schools that do not conform to the restrictive standards used in the rankings the authors show that as law schools compete to improve their rankings their programs become more homogenized and less accessible to non traditional students the ranking system is considered a valuable resource for learning about more than 200 law schools yet engines of anxiety shows that the drive to increase a school s rankings has negative consequences for students educators and administrators and has implications for all educational programs that are quantified in similar ways the aim of this book was motivated to convert an inhumane or insipid experience with the various sources of global ranking into the kind of humanly and cultural experience within our daily lifestyle their outlook from presentation is masked with the number purely and perhaps through a myriad of complicated data or ranking information the concept or self identification within the experience or exposure would be less substantial or hard to get palpable my attempt to improve this aspect of contemporary practice certainly will fall short but you can sense in some paragraphs or titles i wrote this small piece of book in the end to take care of human integrity and stories for advancing the inherence and liveliness of interested actors or consumers despite all the wind heads from the turf of existing ranking sources the idea hopefully might be compatible with brand personification for the people interested in this area of world phenomenon the structure of book was organized in less complete way but might look cursory and spontaneous the dealings obviously are never exhaustive unlike the major commercial providers rather more akin to the consulting webs primarily in direct contact with the customers nevertheless the ranking results finalized through this book is original in its methodology or in terms of data collection although the presentation is little in scope and mainly suggestive as a kind of ranking philosopher given my status as a college professor it would be an unusual chemistry or brought me to shimmer at some point of meditation on how i could rank fairly and meaningfully i merely hope that the readership can generously take this attempt as a pilot work or as the kind of post modern work avant gardo or civilization strolls from understanding criticism it might be even through a bootstrap with the universal constitutionalism or communicative democracy the book had been prepared mainly by editing into each section the previous work of articles and flowing through each of my brief pertaining to the purported ranking nevertheless i am presenting an up to date elaboration on the graduate or post graduate study and kiosk on research doctorates as followed by section four the conventional spectrum of global cu rankings was discussed with a new attempt to measure them lastly a reflection and piece of thought were wrought through little pages titled epilogue at the end of this booklet the correction and supplementary notes had been prepared to incorporate the developments and changes of data as well as correct the errors and supplement with the refinements for in text explanation i also provided the historical chart and 2010 nrc study for a comprehensive grasp of its assessment because the study of national research council is most exhaustive and authoritative ranking source on research doctorates called ph ds in addition the ranking of professional schools for instance law schools medical schools nursing schools and on as presented to the students in usnwr is very determinative in deciding which school we choose in this light i marshalled a ranking that had been yielded on the information of usnwr which was concerned with the diversity and quality of graduate programs and law studies specifically therefore this book can be referred to a vast of interested people on the graduate studies in the united states over the past ten years the pisa assessment has risen to strategic prominence in the international education policy discourse sponsored organized and administered by the organization for economic cooperation and development oecd pisa seems well on its way to being institutionalized as the main engine in the global accountability regime the goal of this book is to problematize this development and pisa as an institution building force in global education it scrutinizes the role of pisa in the emerging regime of global educational governance and questions the presumption that the quality of a nation s school system can be evaluated through a standardized assessment that is insensitive to the world s vast cultural and institutional diversity the book raises the question of whether pisa s dominance in the global educational discourse runs the risk of engendering an unprecedented process of worldwide educational standardization for the sake of hitching schools more tightly to the bandwagon of economic efficiency while sacrificing their role to prepare students for independent thinking and civic participation
