autobiography of an urdu writer in early twentieth century british india prior to the arrival of digital medias and after the rise of nationalist political movements a small town paper from the margins became a key node for an urdu journalism conversation with particular influence in the united provinces and punjab understanding this newspaper s rise shows how a print public characterized by bottom up as well as top down approaches influenced the evolution of a new type of urdu public in 20th century south asia addressing a gap in scholarship on urdu media in the early 20th century during the period where it underwent some of its most critical transformations this book contributes a discursive and material analysis of a previously unexamined urdu newspaper madinah augmenting its analysis with evidence from contemporary urdu english and hindi papers government records private diaries private library holdings ethnographic interviews with families who owned and ran the newspaper and training materials for newspaper printers madinah identified the urdu newspaper conversation both explicitly and implicitly with muslim identity a commitment that became difficult to manage as the pro congress paper sought simultaneously to counter calls for pakistan to criticize congress treatment of muslims and to emphasize urdu s necessary connection to muslim identity since madinah delineated the boundaries of a muslim public conversation in a way that emphasized rootedness to local politics and small urban spaces like bijnor this study demonstrates the necessity of considering spatial and temporal orientation in studies of the public in south asia while similar in method to the activity based learning introduced in the first set of books urdu for children book ii is designed to meet the needs of children of seven to eight years of age and older the students level is determined by their facility in reading writing and speaking urdu rather than their chronological age the scope of the topics in book ii is wider than in book i and the forty stories and poems most of them original are more complex and longer the original artwork is richer and more varied and the english urdu and urdu english vocabulary lists are more comprehensive two volumes of let s read urdu have been added to help children enhance their reading skills while a two part workbook provides practice exercises in writing and reinforces the new vocabulary introduced in the texts the activity based teacher s manual provides detailed lesson plans for each urdu text two cds accompanying the two volumes of the textbook to help ensure standard pronunciation of words and intonations in sentences and infuse life into the stories original music was composed for the poems allowing children to sing them to help with memorization developed by a team of trained public school teachers with extensive backgrounds in teaching urdu as a heritage language the urdu language textbook series helps meet the needs of a rapidly growing urdu speaking community it is the first step towards helping children develop urdu linguistic skills so that they can keep their heritage and culture alive in early twentieth century british india prior to the arrival of digital medias and after the rise of nationalist political movements a small town paper from the margins of society became a key player in urdu journalism published in the isolated market town of bijnor madinah grew to hold influence across north india and the punjab while navigating complex issues of religious and political identity in print and the urdu public megan robb uses the previously unexamined perspective of the madinah to consider urdu print publics and urban life in south asia through a discursive and material analysis of madinah the book explores how muslims who had settled in ancestral qasbahs or small towns used newspapers to facilitate a new public consciousness the book demonstrates how madinah connected the urdu newspaper conversation both explicitly and implicitly with muslim identity and delineated the boundaries of a muslim public conversation in a way that emphasized rootedness to local politics and small urban spaces the case study of this influential but understudied newspaper reveals how a network of journalists with substantial ties to qasbahs produced a discourse self consciously alternative to the western influenced secularized cities megan robb augments the analysis with evidence from contemporary urdu english and hindi papers government records private diaries private library holdings ethnographic interviews and training materials for newspaper printers this thoroughly researched volume recovers the erasure of qasbah voices and proclaims the importance of space and time in definitions of the public sphere in south asia print and the urdu public demonstrates how an urdu newspaper published from the margins became central to the muslim public constituted in the first half
