Rethinking Muslim Personal Law 2022-04-28 family law in india has a complex legal structure where different religious communities are guided by their own personal laws each of which historically evolved under various social religious political and legal influences in two comprehensive and lucid volumes flavia agnes a leading activist and advocate in the area examines family law in the light of social realities contemporary rights discourse and the idea of justice what is unique in these volumes is that the ground level litigation practices around women s rights are interwoven with the critical analyses of the statutory provisions relying extensively upon case law volume 1 examines the evolution of the personal laws of hindus muslims christians parsis and jews during the colonial and postcolonial periods how these laws are applied in contemporary questions of marriage divorce property rights and succession and whether it is possible to bring the law in conformity with modern changes through and in both the formal and statutory law and the pluralistic and fluid community based practices it also extensively examines the role of the judiciary the political and academic debates around the issue of uniform civil code and women s citizenship claims in a stratified and hierarchical social order

Muslim Personal Law in South Africa 2019 it is a political study of the controversy surrounding the issue of the uniform civil code vis à vis personal laws from a south asian perspective at the centre of the debate is whether there should be a centralized view of the legal system in a given society or a decentralized view both horizontally and vertically this issue is entangled within the threads of identity politics minority rights women s rights national integration global islamic politics and universal human rights champions of each category view it through their own prisms making the debate extremely complex especially in politically and socially plural south asia so this book attempts to harmonize the threads of the debate to provide a holistic political analysis
