the dinka have a connoisseur s appreciation of the patterns and colours of the markings on their cattle the japanese tea ceremony is regarded as a performance art some cultures produce carving but no drawing others specialize in poetry yet despite the rich variety of artistic expression to be found across many cultures we all share a deep sense of aesthetic pleasure the need to create art of some form is found in every human society in the art instinct denis dutton explores the idea that this need has an evolutionary basis how the feelings that we all share when we see a wonderful landscape or a beautiful sunset evolved as a useful adaptation in our hunter gather ancestors and have been passed on to us today manifest in our artistic natures why do people indulge in displaying their artistic skills how can we understand artistic genius why do we value art and what is it for these questions have long been asked by scholars in the humanities and in literature but this is the first book to consider the biological basis of this deep human need this sparking and intelligent book looks at these deep and fundamental questions and combines the science of evolutionary psychology with aesthetics to shed new light on longstanding questions about the nature of art reproduction of the original art in england by dutton cook essays examine art forgery from the perspectives of art history criticism aesthetics and ethics and discuss the connection between authenticity and aesthetic value an entertaining look at the psychology and neuroscience behind the act of influencing others kirkus reviews people try to persuade us every day from the news to the internet to coworkers and family everyone and everything wants to influence our thoughts in some way and in turn we hope to persuade others understanding the dynamics of persuasion can help us to achieve our own goals and resist being manipulated by those who don t necessarily have our best interests at heart psychologist kevin dutton has identified a powerful strain of immediate instinctual persuasion a method of influence that allows people to disarm skepticism win arguments and close deals with a combination of astute methods and in depth research in the fields of psychology and neuroscience dutton s fascinating and provocative book introduces the natural super persuaders in our midst buddhist monks magicians advertisers con men hostage negotiators and even psychopaths reveals which hidden pathways in the brain lead us to believe something even when we know it s not true explains how group dynamics can make us more tolerant or deepen our extremism illuminates the five elements of spice simplicity perceived self interest incongruity confidence and empathy for instantly effective persuasion split second persuasion offers some powerful insights into the art and science of getting people to do what you want new scientist from the author of margaret the first and sprawl comes a prose collection like no other where different styles of writing and different spaces of experience create a collage of the depths and strangeness of contemporary life danielle dutton s endlessly inventive books have been praised as strikingly smart and daringly feminist jenny offill brilliantly odd the irish independent and beguiling the wall street journal in prairie dresses art other four distinct sections operate like joseph cornell boxes each offering its own vibrant proposal for what contemporary writing might be prairie is a cycle of stories set in the midwest a surreal landscape of wildflowers ominous rivers violence virtual reality art fear and loss the conceptual work in dresses reconsiders the canon through the lens of its garb like a wild literary closet art turns to essay examining how works of visual art and fiction relate to one another a theme central to the whole book the final section other collects pieces in irregular other forms stories as essays or essays as stories that defy category and are hilarious or heartbreaking for reasons as inexplicable as the abiding beauty and strangeness of all of dutton s work what if i were to tell you that a psychopathic arsonist might also be the person most likely to save you from a burning building this book is about a special kind of persuasion flipnosis it has an incubation period of just seconds and can instantly disarm even the most discerning mind flipnosis is black belt mind control it doesn t just turn the tables it kicks them over from the malign but fascinating powers of psychopaths serial killers and con men to the political genius of winston churchill via the grandmasters of martial arts buddhist monks magicians advertisers salesmen ceos and frogs that mug each other kevin dutton s brilliantly original and revelatory book explores what cutting edge science can teach us about the techniques of persuasion the art experience an introduction to philosophy and the arts takes readers on an engaging and accessible journey that explores a series of fundamental questions about the nature of art and aesthetic value the book s 12 chapters explore three questions what makes something a work of art how should we experience art to get the most out of it once we understand art how should we evaluate whether it is good or bad philosophical theory is illustrated with concrete examples the paintings of frida kahlo the music of johann sebastian bach the masks of the nso people and many others classic questions are balanced with cutting edge challenges such as linda nochlin s work on the exclusion of women from the artistic canon the art experience presupposes no prior knowledge of philosophy or art and it will be of interest to any reader seeking an accessible and engaging introduction to this field along the way readers learn how philosophical theories can affect our real world experiences with painting music theater and many other art forms key features accessible for any college student assumes no knowledge of philosophy art theory or any artistic medium organizes topics conceptually rather than

historically allowing students to more easily grasp the core issues themselves rather than tracing their historical evolution offers readers a large number of contemporary examples and a consistent focus on the way theory can affect people's real world experiences with art explores questions about bias for example whether the artistic canon has excluded some groups unfairly and whether definitions of art are western biased discover the fascinating world of theatrical history and the art of acting through a series of engaging and insightful essays by dutton cook from the ancient defined to include all of the arts some of these questions come from philosophy examples include what makes something art can anything be art do we experience real emotions from the arts why do we seek out and even cherish sorrow and fear from art when we go out of our way to avoid these very emotions in real life how do we decide what is good art do aesthetic judgments have any objective truth value why do we devalue fakes even if we indeed even the experts can't tell them apart from originals does fiction enhance our empathy and understanding of others is art making therapeutic others are common sense questions that laypersons wonder about examples include does learning to play music raise a child's iq is modern art something my kid could do is talent a matter of nature or nurture this book examines puzzles about the arts wherever their provenance as long as there is empirical research using the methods of social science interviews experimentation data collection statistical analysis that can shed light on these questions the examined research reveals how ordinary people think about these questions and why they think the way they do an inquiry referred to as intuitive aesthetics the book shows how psychological research on the arts has shed light on and often offered surprising answers to such questions the poetical gazette the official organ of the poetry society century exhibited at the metropolitan museum of art in new york this third volume of american university publications in philosophy continues the tradition of presenting books in the series shaping current frontiers and new directions in philosophical reflection in a period emerging from the neglect of creativity by positivism professors dutton and krausz and their eminent colleagues included in the collection challenge modern philosophy to explore the concept of creativity in both scientific inquiry and artistic production in view of the fact that professor krausz served at one time as visiting professor of philosophy at the american university we are especially pleased to include this volume in the series harold a durfee for the editors of american university publications in philosophy editors preface while the literature on the psychology of creativity is substantial surprisingly little attention has been paid to the subject by philosophers in recent years this fact is no doubt owed in part to the legacy of positivism whose tenets have included a sharp distinction between what hans reichenbach called the context of discovery and the context of justification philosophy in this view must address itself to the logic of justifying hypotheses little of philosophical importance can be said about the more creative business of discovering them that positivism has held is no more than a merely psychological question since there is no logic of discovery or creation there can be no philosophical reconstruction of it this clear thorough and reliable survey of american painting and sculpture from colonial times to the present day covers all the major artists and their works outlines the social and cultural backgrounds of each period and includes 409 illustrations integrated with the text although some determining factors in american art are considered matthew baigell views the rich and diverse achievements of american art as the result of the efforts and talents of a pluralistic society rather than as fitting into a particular mold this edition includes corrections and revisions to the text an updated bibliography and 13 new illustrations of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant in art language international robert bailey reconstructs the history of the conceptual art collective art language situating it in a geographical context to rethink its implications for the broader histories of contemporary art focusing on its international collaborations with dozens of artists and critics in and outside the collective between 1969 and 1977 bailey positions art language at the center of a historical shift from euro american modernism to a global contemporary art he documents the collective s growth and reach from transatlantic discussions on the nature of conceptual art and the establishment of distinct working groups in new york and england to the collective s later work in australia new zealand and yugoslavia bailey also details its publications associations with political organizations and the internal power struggles that precipitated its breakdown analyzing a wide range of artworks texts music and films he reveals how art language navigated between art worlds to shape the international profile of conceptual art above all bailey underscores how the group s rigorous and interdisciplinary work provides a gateway to understanding how conceptual art operates as a mode of thinking that exceeds the visual to shape the philosophical historical and political there is not a trace of the provincial nor the apologetic in the tone of the state of mind texts rather there is a justified claim for the sophisticated originality of this californian art sophisticated because the authors have convincingly argued that the artists for the most part had many conscious connections and familiarity with art from the rest of the country and europe yet were driven by a desire to be independent and different moira roth editor
