if planning is understood to be about the nature of place about the way in which we use land and about the physical expression of the ordering of society then it becomes apparent that planning as an activity cannot possibly be divorced from the general cultural traditions that inform it by adopting theoretical approaches from the fields of management studies cultural studies and anthropology and by using culture as an organising principle this book develops an innovative framework which provides better insights into what culture is about what the relations are between culture and planning and how culture influences planning practices it introduces a culturised planning model consisting of the analytical dimensions planning artefacts planning environment and societal environment with which to discover the unconscious routines and assumptions emotions and meanings attached to planning systems and the different concepts used in spatial planning systematically the model offers the possibility of uncovering cultural phenomena in spatial planning by providing relevant cultural dimensions and potential specifications and indicators which has not been the case so far by comparing examples of german finnish and greek planning habits the book illustrates cultural influence in planning and provides the readership with a feedback between the micro experiences of planners and the macro level institutional and social context as well as a more systematic comparison based on cultural values attitudes norms and rules the political and academic worlds are fractured by two competing discourses the universalism of human rights and cultural relativism this fracture is represented by the deep separation of cultural analysis and theories of international politics derek robbins in a brilliant interrogation of european thinkers from montesquieu to pierre bourdieu seeks to replace cultural relativism with cultural relationism as a step towards reconciling enlightenment universalism and anthropological insistence on cultural difference inter alia he reflects on the tensions between political and social science and takes up the challenge from raymond aron to construct a sociology of international relations a dazzling achievement bryan s turner the graduate center cuny through historical studies of some of the work of montesquieu comte durkheim boas morgenthau aron and bourdieu derek robbins examines the changing and competing conceptualisations of the political and the social in the western european intellectual tradition he suggests that we are now experiencing a new dissociation of sensibility in which political thought and its consequences in action have become divorced from social and cultural experience developing further the ideas of bourdieu which he has presented in books and articles over the last twenty years robbins argues that we need to integrate the recognition of cultural difference with the practice of international politics by accepting that the field of international political discourse is a social construct which is contingent on encounters between diverse cultures everything is relative comte and everything is social bourdieu not least international politics
