facing the harrowing task of rebuilding a life in the wake of the holocaust many jewish survivors community and religious leaders and allied soldiers viewed marriage between jewish women and military personnel as a way to move forward after unspeakable loss proponents believed that these unions were more than just a ticket out of war torn europe they would help the jewish people repopulate after the attempted annihilation of european jewry historian robin judd whose grandmother survived the holocaust and married an american soldier after liberation introduces us to the jewish women who lived through genocide and went on to wed american canadian and british military personnel after the war she offers an intimate portrait of how these unions emerged and developed from meeting and courtship to marriage and immigration to life in the united states canada and the united kingdom and shows how they helped shape the postwar world by touching thousands of lives including those of the chaplains who officiated their weddings the allied authorities whose policy decisions structured the couples fates and the bureaucrats involved in immigration and acculturation the stories judd tells are at once heartbreaking and restorative and she vividly captures how the exhilaration of the brides early romances coexisted with survivor s guilt grief and apprehension at the challenges of starting a new life in a new land this is the third and final battle even with all the knowledge and wisdom we have gained daily we make choices between the material world and the ethereal world choices between our ego or our true selves underpinning these personal choices are two ethereal destinations that are actively courting us one of these destinations offers material rewards for its loyalty while the other offers spiritual rewards this final book will shed light onto the masters of these two destinations and the characteristics of their servants the ancient greeks referred to the two sets of servants as nymphs and muses each nymph specialized in a different vice ready to offer material reward for loyalty each muse specializes in one of the virtues and offers wisdom for loyalty i will start by looking at the life of abram and examine how these two masters attempted to influence his life by taking what science has uncovered about the life of abram and what religions teach about his life and the lives of his children we can begin to discover the spiritual battle that has raged on earth since the beginning of time the archangel michael was there at the beginning of this battle and now it is our turn to finish the battle this is the purpose of life in the material world the enlightened greeks celebrated the emergence of aphrodite from the bitter sea escaping its ruler poseidon and starting her journey back to olympus the cover also shows how they depicted hercules disguised in a lion skin the symbol for the ruler of this world and of the bitter sea hades
