the communes for visual and spatial dominance in the urban center this rivalry left indelible marks on the layout and character of italian cities moreover miller contends this struggle for power had highly significant but mixed results for western christianity on the one hand as bishops lost direct governing authority in their cities they devised ways to retain status influence and power through cultural practices this response to loss was highly creative on the other hand their loss of secular control led bishops to emphasize their spiritual powers and to use them to obtain temporal ends the coercive use of spiritual authority contributed to the emergence of a persecuting society in the central middle ages through a visually oriented investigation of historical in visibility in early modern italy the essays in this volume recover those women wives widows mistresses the illegitimate who have been erased from history in modern literature rendered invisible or obscured by history or scholarship as well as those who were overshadowed by male relatives political accident or spatial location a multi faceted invisibility of the individual and of the object is the thread that unites the chapters in this volume though some women chose to be invisible for example the cloistered nun these essays show that in fact their voices are heard or seen through their commissions and their patronage of the arts which afforded them some visibility invisibility is also examined in terms of commissions which are no longer extant or are inaccessible what is revealed throughout the essays is a new way of looking at works of art a new way to visualize the past by addressing representational invisibility the marginalized or absent subject or object and historical in visibility to discover who does the looking and how this shapes how something or someone is visible or invisible the result is a more nuanced understanding of the place of women and gender in early modern italy the intellectual societies known as academies played a vital role in the development of culture and scholarly debate throughout italy between 1525 1700 they were fundamental in establishing the intellectual networks later defined as the république des lettres and in the dissemination of ideas in early modern europe through print manuscript oral debate and performance this volume surveys the social and cultural role of academies challenging received ideas and incorporating recent archival findings on individuals networks and texts ranging over academies in both major and smaller or peripheral centres these collected studies explore the interrelationships of academies with other cultural forums individual essays examine the fluid nature of academies and their changing relationships to the political authorities their role in the promotion of literature the visual arts and theatre and the diverse membership recorded for many academies which included scientists writers printers artists political and religious thinkers and unusually a number of talented women contributions by established international scholars together with studies by younger scholars active in this developing field of research map out new perspectives on the dynamic place of the academies in early modern italy the publication results from the research collaboration the italian academies 1525 1700 the first intellectual networks of early modern europe funded by the arts and humanities research council and is edited by the senior investigators expanding interdisciplinary investigations into gender and material culture katherine a mciver here adds a new dimension to renaissance patronage studies by considering domestic art the decoration of the domestic interior as opposed to patronage of the fine arts painting sculpture and architecture taking a this study presents new evidence for the development of commerce and inter regional trade through survey and analysis of urban layout and architecture the study of roman urbanism especially its early republican phases is extensively rooted in the evidence provided by a series of key sites several of them located in italy some of these italian towns e g fregellae alba fucens cosa have received a great deal of scholarly attention in the past and they are routinely referenced as textbook examples framing much of our understanding of the broad phenomenon of roman urbanism however discussions of these sites tend to fall back on well established interpretations with relatively little or no awareness of more recent developments this is remarkable since our understanding of these sites has since evolved thanks to new archaeological fieldwork often characterised by the pursuit of new questions and the application of new approaches similarly new evidence from other sites has since prompted a reconsideration of time honoured views about the nature role and long term trajectory of roman towns in italy tracing its origins in the laurence seminar on roman urbanism in italy recent discoveries and new directions which this volume offers the first comprehensive survey of regime change in Italy in the period c. 1494–c. 1559 far from being a purely modern phenomenon regime change was a common feature of life in Renaissance Italy no more so than during the Italian Wars 1494–1559 during those turbulent years governments rose and fell with dizzying regularity some changes of regime were peaceful others were more violent but whenever a new reggimento took power old social tensions were laid bare and new challenges emerged any of which could easily threaten its survival this provoked a variety of responses both from newly established regimes and from their opponents constitutional reforms were proposed and enacted civic rituals were developed works of art were commissioned literary works were penned and occasionally aspects of material culture were pressed into service as well comparative in approach and broad in scope it offers a provocative new view of the diverse political culture and economic factors which ensured the survival or demise of regimes not only in major polities like Florence Rome and Venice but also in less well studied regions like Savoy this book will appeal to researchers and students alike interested in cultural political and military history this lavishly illustrated book looks at the art and architecture of episcopal palaces as expressions of power and ideology tracing the history of the bishop's residence in the urban centers of northern Italy over the Middle Ages Maureen C. Miller asks why this once rudimentary and highly fortified structure called a domus became a complex and elegant palace palatium by the late twelfth century Miller argues that the change reflects both the emergence of a distinct clerical culture and the attempts of bishops to maintain authority in public life she relates both to the Gregorian Reform movement which set new standards for clerical deportment and at the same time undercut episcopal claims to secular power as bishops lost temporal authority in their cities to emerging communal governments they compensated architecturally and competed with the communes for visual and spatial dominance in the urban center this rivalry left indelible marks on the layout and character of Italian cities moreover Miller contends this struggle for power had highly significant but mixed results for Western Christianity on the one hand as bishops lost direct governing authority in their cities they devised ways to retain status influence and power through cultural practices this response to loss was highly creative on the other hand their loss of secular control led bishops to emphasize their spiritual powers and to use them to obtain temporal ends the coercive use of spiritual authority contributed to the emergence of a persecuting society in the central middle ages
