seminar paper from the year 2002 in the subject english language and literature studies linguistics grade 2 3 b university of mannheim anglistics seminar course proseminar language science 9 entries in the bibliography language english abstract text linguistic science respectively discourse analysis is a rather young linguistic discipline which was mainly established in the 1960s and 70s it mainly emerged from three linguistic movements rhetoric stylistics and structural analysis of narratives discourse analysis tries to figure out specific schemes which are relevant to define a chain of words as a text as there have always been different definitions of what a text is it is absolutely necessary in this paper which definition is actually used however it has to be said that there is still no one and only valid definition of what a text is thus the beginning of the paper deals with several theoretical subjects and explains the term text that is relevant for the following analysis besides it describes which criteria have to be fulfilled in order to achieve textuality in the course of the analysis the paper applies the introduced text theory to an excerpt of david lodge s novel thinks which was published in 2001 the excerpt s textuality is examined by illustrating how far the seven criteria of textuality are fulfilled this novel was chosen because it combines many different ways of telling the analyzed extract for example is a stream of consciousness and contains many peculiarities therefore it is very interesting to figure out if the passage can be defined as a text without problems furthermore this paper analyzes the relevant peculiarities in the text s structure and in its syntax in the course of this analysis again several necessary theoretical aspects are explained furthermore the text type is named as there are no peculiarities in the text s sound structure and as sign theory does not play a role these two points are not taken into consideration at the end some concluding remarks sum up the text analysis s most important results discourse markers the particles oh well now then you know and i mean and the connectives so because and but and or perform important functions in conversation dr schiffrin s approach is firmly interdisciplinary within linguistics and sociology and her rigorous analysis clearly demonstrates that neither the markers nor the discourse within which they function can be understood from one point of view alone but only as an integration of structural semantic pragmatic and social factors the core of the book is a comparative analysis of markers within conversational discourse collected by dr schiffrin during sociolinguistic fieldwork the study concludes that markers provide contextual coordinates which aid in the production and interpretation of coherent conversation at both local and global levels of organization it raises a wide range of theoretical and methodological issues important to discourse analysis including the relationship between meaning and use the role of qualitative and quantitative analyses and the insights it offers will be of particular value to readers confronting the very substantial problems presented by the search for a model of discourse which is based on what people actually say mean and do with words in everyday social interaction
