edward fisher s first collection of poems conversation with a skeleton is a haunting meticulously crafted tour de force at once passionate and lyrical it is both a lament for and defense of a lost bohemia in it he plumbs the depths of a mood of disquietude defiant in the face of certain trends in american culture its unchecked militarism its imperial propaganda and the corporate colonization of consciousness all of which show little sympathy for poets and tend to marginalize dismiss or even steer them toward martyrdom here are sleepless nights oedipal anxieties a psychological exploration of writers block a disturbing look at our epidemic of missing and exploited children a melancholy meditation on black holes the atomic age and the extinction of species along with homages to a pantheon of dead poets who dominate his sensibilities and style at home in both free verse and more traditional form fisher does not shy away from the challenges posed to modern practitioners by meter and rhyme these are moments of vision and witness that dare to stare unflinchingly into the existential abyss the dilemma of ourselves in the midst of a world at the brink in all its tragic tortured dimensions
