building on the form critical assessment of the lukan ascension story lk 24 50 53 acts 1 1 12 as a rapture story and motivated by the consideration that the monotheistic principle almost inevitably must have led to a reestimate of the meaning and function of rapture in comparison with heathen rapture stories immortalisation and deification the present study seeks to investigate the lukan ascension story in the light of the first century jewish rapture traditions enoch elijah moises baruch ezra etc the author argues that first century judaism provides a more plausible horizon of understanding for the ascension story than the graeco roman rapture tradition and that luke develops his rapture christology not as a reinterpretation of the primitive exaltation kerygma g lohfinck but as a response to the eschatological question i e the delay of the parousia so as to secure the unity of salvation history

The Son of Man in Myth and History borsch has not answered all the questions of course who can but his view of the man tradition makes more sense to me than for example perrin s rather cavalier dismissal of the evidence and it not only enlightens but also enlivens the discussion as against the extreme skeptics borsch is also convincing to me in arguing the case for a large measure of authenticity in the son of man tradition in the gospels if the proof of the pudding is in the eating the book constantly calls me back to its pages for insight regarding the problem both in its historical dimension and in its bearing upon the meaning of jesus of nazareth for faith today theology the author is well aware of the difficulties involved in entering a field wherein so much investigation has been done and of this with the positive and negative conclusions he gives an excellent survey crisp and critical the lines opened up will engage the attention of a new and more positive chapter in the form critical argument london quarterly and holborn review frederick h borsch is the retired bishop of the episcopal diocese of los angeles and professor of new testament and chair of anglican studies at the lutheran theological seminary at philadelphia he is also the former dean of the chapel at princeton university his other books include the spirit searches everything keeping life s questions the bible s authority in today s church introducing the lessons of the church year a guide for lay readers and congregations and the christian and gnostic son of man in contemporary western culture the word fetus introduces either a political subject or a literal medicalized entity neither of these frameworks does justice to the vast array of religious literature and oral traditions from cultures around the world in which the fetus emerges as a powerful symbol or metaphor this volume presents essays that explore the depiction of the fetus in the world's major religious traditions finding some striking commonalities as well as intriguing differences among the themes that emerge is the tendency to conceive of the fetus as somehow independent of the mother's body as in the case of the buddha who is described as inhabiting a palace while gestating in the womb on the other hand the fetus can also symbolically represent profound human needs and emotions such as the universal experience of vulnerability the authors note how the advent of the fetal sonogram has transformed how people everywhere imagine the unborn today giving rise to a narrow range of decidedly literal questions about personhood gender and disability
