today's Goldsmith and his co-authors first identify five new factors of leadership and their implications: global thinking, appreciation of diversity, technological savvy, a willingness to partner, and an openness to sharing leadership. They explain what it will mean to lead in an era where intellectual capital is the dominant source of value, how to lead people whose backgrounds and values may be radically dissimilar from yours, and why achieving personal self-mastery is now a fundamental prerequisite for leading others. From the evolution of federated, semi-autonomous organizational structures to the personal leadership challenges now arising from globalism, this book offers unprecedented insights into the new challenges of leadership and what it will take to meet them.

Global Leadership 1994-03-01: Employers who refuse to adapt to the expectations of younger generations are losing out on top talent as they leave for positions at companies with more modern practices. Learn what companies need to do to fit into the new normal in the workplace. Generation Y sees the world differently than any other generation. In modern memory and nowhere is this more evident than in the workplace. The astronomical shifts that this generation has seen in the economy, technology, and the world have changed what they want from life and work, which is not a 9-5 existence for forty-plus years leading to a typical retirement at sixty-five. What older generations call a poor work ethic, from a spoiled generation Gen Y sees as a different way of doing things. Companies that don't get on board risk losing the diverse young talent that is critical for them to be able to compete. Companies that take the time to listen realize that what Gen Y is asking for isn't that crazy. In fact, it's better in many ways. A demand for work-life balance isn't a cry for fewer work hours; it's a cry to be able to work from outside the office beyond a rigid 9-5 schedule, which can lead ironically to Gen Y employees working even more hours than you expected. Leaving a job after a couple years isn't an inability to commit; it's a need to learn more, expand their experience, and develop their career at a faster pace. Something that is helpful to companies that hire those individuals, including your own, elevating nontraditional benefits over financial benefits is a step toward creating an emotional connection to the company where employees spend the majority of their time and invest significant mental and emotional efforts. The need to work for a company with a purpose is a reflection of the power that social media has had on the social consciousness. This book will explore what's behind these shifts in the character of the emerging workforce. It shows that as Gen Y assumes managerial positions, the nature of leadership and business will change over the next few decades in irrevocable and profound ways.

THIS PHNE 2.0 2017-09-05: When Lieutenant Worf is suspected of murdering a member of an emotion-casting race aboard the Enterprise, the surviving aliens overwhelm the crew with an onslaught of emotions, and Worf must find the true killer.

Next Generation Leadership 2006: Today's children will be an unprecedented global force. Are they ready? The next generation maps out the world of possibilities ahead for today's young people and reveals the skills and habits they'll need to take full advantage of their unique futures. Around 35% of the world's population is under 20 years of age, known as Generation Z and Generation Alpha. These children are coming of age in a world that is safer, healthier, wealthier, and more productive than ever before. Opportunities fan out in the distance for today's kids; a world of possibility awaits, and they will be the ones to shape the future. For us all, right now, it's the job of parents and educators to prepare these kids for what awaits. They need an instinctual adaptability, quick thinking, and comfort with change. They need to be technologically literate and ready to take on whatever challenges arise. This book explores the evolution of coming of age in a world
