jesus as an agent of divine actions or as one who possesses human agency is commonplace in christological discussions yet these discussions often wade in a shallow understanding of the terms meanings and the theological implications of such claims for example while many theologians who are committed to the definition of chalcedon consider jesus one agent we might ask if this implies that the triune god comprises three agents or if christ possesses singular agency how are his divinity and humanity operative in his actions in response this work draws from the theology of john owen and advancements in philosophy of action in order to offer an account of divine and human agency in christological action from within the reformed tradition it provides clarity to the christological and trinitarian uses of the language of agent agency in christ and attends to the theological esp trinitarian entailments therein while at first glance there may appear to be internal inconsistencies with accounts that subscribe to classical trinitarianism and reformed christological agency this book argues that owen helps us recover an understanding of christological agency that is internally coherent and theologically prudent as such the reformed tradition can articulate christological agency in a way that is coherent with the testimony of scripture the ecumenical councils and classical trinitarianism while contributing to contemporary theological discussions the case not only provides terminological clarity and theological coherence but also inclines christians to appreciate the trinitarian love of god in christ's action and the human sympathy of christ for his people this book provides a foundational and contextualized body of information regarding contemporary leadership
