the rules of the world are changing it is time for the rules of teaching and teachers work to change with them this is the challenge which andy hargreaves sets out in his new book on teachers work and culture in the postmodern world drawing on his current research with teachers at all levels hargreaves shows through their own vivid words what teaching is really like how it is already changing and why he argues that the structures and cultures of teaching need to change even more if teachers are not to be trapped by guilt pressed by time and overburdened by decisions imposed upon them provocative yet practical this book is written for teachers and those who work with teachers and for researchers who want to understand teaching better in the postmodern age

this paper investigates to what extent low income developing countries lidcs characterized as frontier markets fms have begun to be subject to capital flows dynamics typically associated with emerging markets ems using a sample of developing countries covering the period 2000-14 we show that i average annual portfolio flows to fms as a share of gdp outstripped those to ems by about 0.6 percentage points of gdp ii during years of heightened stress in global financial markets portfolio flows to fms dried up like those to ems and that iii fms have become more integrated into international financial markets our findings confirm that in terms of portfolio flows fms have become more similar to ems than to the rest of lidcs and are therefore more vulnerable to swings in global financial markets conditions accordingly it is important to have in place frameworks to strengthen fms resilience to adverse capital flows shocks this book puts real life back into the literature on school principalship through a life history approach it portrays daily life in schools as a much more messy contested and precarious existence where principals struggle with passionate commitment to find continuity amongst frequently changing and often conflicting policy initiatives the book draws on comprehensively in depth interview data with new experienced and veteran principals their life stories illustrate the struggles involved in the ongoing negotiation of identities through unprecedented change the authors lucidly argue that the realities of principals lives are much more demanding than rational linear approaches to reform suggest a revolving door approach to the appointment of principals is inadequate passion is central to the lives and work of principals but this passion needs to be rejuvenated and rekindled through opportunities for learning there is a need for further research on the relationship between the lifecycles of principals the leadership legacies of school communities and the cycles of mandated reforms as a means of lending coherence to leadership learning and sustained and renewed leaders this is essential reading for principals and their professional bodies academics and researchers school leaders on leadership courses internationally most college students struggle tremendously with their bodies numerous issues related to the body plague higher education students struggle with sleep mental health eating disorders sexual identity questions clothing choices obesity and alcohol problems among other concerns too often christian colleges try to meet these challenges with rules instead of setting forth a vision of what it means to steward the body a precious gift from god that has been bought with a price by christ students faculty and staff at faith based institutions need a theological framework and biblical wisdom by which they can better understand nurture and celebrate life in all its fullness stewarding our bodies draws from the expertise and experiences of researchers and practitioners both within and outside higher education to provide relevant insights and suggestions for those who desire to help students better bear god s image most important of all it sets forth a positive vision by which to understand the precious gift god has entrusted to us our bodies
