roger scruton is britain s best known intellectual dissident who has defended english traditions and english identity against an official culture of denigration although his writings on philosophical aesthetics have shown him to be a leading authority in the field his defence of political conservatism has marked him out in academic circles as public enemy number one whether it is scruton s opinions that get up the nose of his critics or the wit and erudition with which he expresses them there is no doubt that their noses are vastly distended by his presence and constantly on the verge of a collective sneeze contrary to orthodox opinion however roger scruton is a human being and gentle regrets contains the proof of it a quiet witty but also serious and moving account of the ways in which life brought him to think what he thinks and to be what he is his moving vignettes of his childhood and later influences illuminate this book love him or hate him he will engage you in an argument that is both intellectually stimulating and informed by humour

the time is post world war ii the place is the united states and sporadically several at risk foreign countries the story is about a young scientist richard who believes that the origins of violence and warfare can be found in the early life experiences of individuals to test this belief richard insists he must have firsthand research experience which means traveling to foreign countries to observe local populations under stress and to study their children in the process he meets many intriguing people and inadvertently gets entangled in a potentially dangerous espionage operation william charlesworth has created a story embodying two problems on epistemological the other biobehavioral the first is the problem of acquiring the truth of something firsthand as a valid substitute for learning though potentially unreliable intermediaries such as the popular media the second problem is the question of whether the origins of violence lie in normal resource competition between individuals rather than in some form of innate human pathology while conducting research to deal with these problems charlesworth s scientist encounters individuals whose survival behavior challenges the value of posing both problems
