the question of historic titles in international law has been much discussed in recent years in particular it was an issue of some importance in several international arbitrations such as the gulf of fon seca case decided by the central american court of justice the island of palmas case decided by judge huber as sole arbitrator under the auspices of the permanent court of arbitration the case concerning the legal status of eastern greenland before the permanent court of international justice and more recently still the cases concerning fisheries united kingdom v norway minquiers and ecrehos islets united kingdom v france certain frontier land belgium v netherlands and temple of preah vihear cambodia v thailand before the international court of justice historic titles are probably also a relevant factor in a number of territorial disputes that have not yet been submitted to arbitration or judicial settlement the recent controversies over the proper breadth for the territorial sea and the exclusive fishing limits of coastal states have brought to the fore new aspects of the problem
