excerpt from the early days of santa barbara california from the first discoveries by europeans to december 1846 in disregard of the historic value of the old buildings of the mission presidio and pueblo of santa barbara precious monuments sacred to the memory of men who will be remembered for generations to come tiled roofs have been destroyed walls allowed to crumble and foundations effaced already some of the most interesting buildings have gone even their former locations are known to few fifteen years ago realizing how rapidly the old landmarks were disappearing the writer with the assistance of an engineer made surveys both at the mission and at the presidio of all the buildings then standing and also of all the ruins and traces of foundations of former buildings these surveys were then carefully platted this work was done on account of a personal interest in the subject and with the view of placing the data thus obtained at the disposal of any one competent and willing to write the history of the early days of santa barbara but the subject has awakened but little interest in the historian and as some of the ruins that were then surveyed have since disappeared the writer now offers this little sketch accompanied by plans of the mission and presidio made from the original surveys in the hope that it will create a greater interest in the lives and works of the founders of this beautiful city about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works the colorful story of a santa barbara landmark the santa barbara county courthouse is a widely recognized icon of the city called the e ocalifornia riviera e and just as widely known as a historic architectural achievement thousands if not millions visit it each yeare jurists and tourists alikee but although everyone appreciates its beauty few really know how it came to be surprisingly in the three quarters of a century that the building has graced its grounds no one has undertaken to document this architectural masterpiece authors patricia gebhard and kathryn masson have changed that once and for all with their book the santa barbara county courthouse together with photographer james chen and book designer eric larsen they have created a work that is not only historically important but nearly as beautiful as the courthouse itself many people know or assume that santa barbara had a courthouse before the present building was erected in 1929 but almost no one knows anything about it gebhard and masson begin there with historic photos of the original classical style courthouse and its queen anne hall of records add on in 1919 the county needing more room held a design competition for a new courthouse and the entries received as gebhard and masson show us were heavily influenced by the spanish baroque style that was popularized by the 1915 panama california exhibition in san diego none of these designs was built however because the county was unable to raise money to pay for construction it wasn't until 1925 when the old courthouse was destroyed by the earthquake that leveled much of santa barbara that a new building became imperative and funds were eventually secured construction began in 1926 with the result we see today the footprint of the old building is reflected in the contours of the sunken gardens behind the present courthouse to document their story gebhard and masson spent months poring over county supervisor's minutes news reports in the santa barbara morning press and articles in architectural magazines and courthouse documents records they were able to identify nearly all of the architects craftsmen and artists who designed the building and created the exquisite tile ironwork furniture murals and landscaping that grace it inside and out many of these individuals and companies are long gone of course but many are still active and as the authors point out some of the courthouse's fittings can still be ordered from their catalogs chen's 75 full color photographs beautifully capture the courthouse's ambiance and larsen's open and asymmetrical book design reflects the building's balance between void space and intricate detail they combine with gebhard and masson's careful research to produce a definitive study and appreciation of the santa barbara county courthouse one that can hope to stand as long as the building itself
