instability of today's economic climate calls for non profit organizations to approach social problems in new and interesting ways and information and communication technologies may serve as an answer to this call. ict management in non profit organizations aims to explore the effective and comprehensive deployment of appropriate ict strategies within the nonprofit sector. this innovative reference work will discuss how ict enables the non profit sector to achieve organizational efficiency, effectiveness, and ultimately self sufficiency and will provide elected and appointed policymakers, managers, and planners in governments, public agencies, and nonprofit organizations with a comprehensive strategy for creating an ict management agenda in the non profit sector. this paper discusses the design of excess profits taxes (epts) that gained renewed interest following the covid 19 outbreak and the recent surge in energy prices. epts can be designed as an efficient tax only falling on economic rent, like an allowance for corporate capital, and drawing some parallels with current proposals for reforming multinationals' taxation. epts can be permanent or temporary, as an add on to the corporate income tax to support revenue during an adverse shock episode. the latter reflects experiences with epts during and after the world wars, different from that era, though profit shifting is now a challenge. estimation using firm level data suggests that at present, locations of excess profit across countries are consistent with profit shifting practices by multinationals. destination based epts can address this concern. estimates suggest that a 10 percent ept on the globally consolidated accounts of multinationals, on top of the current corporate income tax, with the ept base being allocated using sales, raises global revenue by 16 percent of corporate income tax revenues. the analysis suggests that international coordination would be desirable to mitigate the risks of profit shifting and tax competition. eventually, epts could mark an evolution of corporate taxation toward a non distortionary rent tax. having a novel idea and turning that idea into cash is not as simple as it sounds. to help innovative individuals learn to navigate around the many pitfalls of inventing, bob dematteis has written from patent to profit: an up to date guide to all of the important steps involved in taking a product from the drawing board to market. whether you are a professional inventor, a part time dabbler, or just a clever daydreamer, from patent to profit can help make your dreams a reality.

this paper discusses the design of excess profits taxes epts that gained renewed interest following the covid 19 outbreak and the recent surge in energy prices epts can be designed as an efficient tax only falling on economic rent like an allowance for corporate capital and drawing some parallels with current proposals for reforming multinationals taxation epts can be permanent or temporary as an add on to the corporate income tax to support revenue during an adverse shock episode the latter reflects experiences with epts during and after the world wars different from that era though profit shifting is now a challenge estimation using firm level data suggest that at present locations of excess profit across countries are consistent with profit shifting practices by multinationals destination based epts can address this concern estimates suggest that a 10 percent ept on the globally consolidated accounts of multinationals on top of the current corporate income tax with the ept base being allocated using sales raises global revenue by 16 percent of corporate income tax revenues the analysis suggests that international coordination would be desirable to mitigate the risks of profit shifting and tax competition eventually epts could mark an evolution of corporate taxation toward a non distortionary rent tax
