since the 1970s learning from this process smith encourages us to acknowledge that societal change does not occur over night smith proposes a stage theory of incremental change and a vision for building educational reform directly into brokered peace treaties this synthetic approach recognizes how difficult it can be to work with groups that feel threatened by difference but also underscores the importance of finding practical ways to move two conflicted groups to a place where their mentalities can be intertwined into a joint story educational assessment in a time of reform provides background information on large scale examination systems more generally and the south african examination specifically it traces the reforms in the education system of south africa since 1994 and provides a description of the advances in modern test theory that could be considered for future standard setting endeavours at the heart of the book is the debate on whether the current standard of education in africa is good enough if not then how can it be improved the aim of this book is to provide a point of departure for discussions on standard setting quality assurance equating of examinations and assessment approaches from this point of departure recommendations for practices in general and the exit level grade 12 examination results in particular can be made this book is ideal reading for principals teachers academics and researchers in the fields of educational assessment measurement and evaluation this is volume vi of twenty one in a series on race class and social structure originally published in 1953 and using language of the time this is a study of the status of the cape coloured people within the social structure of the union of south africa this book addresses one the most contentious issues of postwar western europe namely the organization of the primary and secondary stages of schooling in state education systems in examining the politics of continuity and change in postwar schooling in britain and the federal republic germany gregory baldi seeks to contribute to more general understandings of education s place in the welfare state the development of social institutions and the relationship between material and ideational factors in shaping political outcomes over time a systematic review of research projects into the state of education in south africa drawing on two decades of interviews and ethnographic fieldwork 1998 2018 this book presents a unique and multi faceted history of youth development in south africa through the lens of a south african non governmental organization ngo prominent in youth development from the mid 1980s until 2008 the book weaves history ethnography and discourse analysis to contextualize the joint enrichment project jep in the politics and history of south african education it examines jep s role leading up to and during south africa s transition to democracy its work and influence in post apartheid south africa and the continued relevance of its legacy to contemporary initiatives seeking to address youth development and social justice while jep repeatedly repositioned itself as an organization from fighting the effects of apartheid on young people to becoming a potential partner with the new african national congress and led government its most significant role may have been to reposition people after tracing jep s twenty year history the book focuses on the participants in a 1998 youth work scheme exploring their learning experiences and the program s immediate impact on their lives it then revisits these participants twenty years later in 2018 analyzing their life trajectories after jep and comparing them with the life trajectories of former jep staff over the same period shedding light on broader patterns of socio economic reproduction and change in the country the book concludes with a discussion of a perennial paradox facing youth development institutions this book will be of great interest to academics researchers and post graduate students in the fields of education international development anthropology and african studies there are simply not enough texts that look comparatively at the two foremost experiments with questions of race culture and and class in the english speaking world the united states and south africa prudence carter s work is simultaneously scholarly and compassionate it helps us see in these two benighted but globally important societies how easily things break but also how well when structures are in place and when human agency takes flight individuals and the groups to which they belong flourish and grow crain soudien deputy vice chancellor university of cape town youth violence sources and solutions in south africa thoroughly and carefully reviews the evidence for risk and protective factors that influence the likelihood of young people acting aggressively layers of understanding are built by viewing the problem from a multitude of perspectives including the current situation in which south african youth are growing up perspectives from developmental psychology the influences of race class and gender and of the media the book then reviews the evidence for effective interventions in the contexts of young people s lives their homes their schools their leisure activities with gangs in the criminal justice system in cities and neighbourhoods and with sexual offenders in doing so thoughtful suggestions are made for keeping an evidence based perspective while necessarily adapting interventions for developing world contexts such as south africa youth violence in south africa sources and solutions is a valuable addition to the library of anyone who has ever wondered about youth violence or wanted to do something about it south africa has done well to systematically expand its educational system and to lengthen the schooling experience of successive learner cohorts but the quality of the output from the school system has been questioned in seeking to identify the reasons for this it is important to relate educational outputs competencies as measured for instance by examinations or standardized tests to inputs determining the relative contributions of the inputs of the school the household and the individual learner to educational outputs is not straightforward particularly since very little educational production function analysis has been undertaken in south africa until recently no south african school data has incorporated test results school characteristics and information on the household circumstances of individual learners necessary for this kind of analysis however the results from a survey of a sample of schools involved in the large scale quality learning project qlp funded by the business trust have yielded such data the qlp data set offers a new analytical opportunity to address the question what are the effects of social and economic variables on educational outcomes in the qlp schools consists of reproductions of articles from south african newspapers influence the likelihood of young people acting aggressively layers of understanding are built by viewing the problem from a multitude of perspectives including the current situation in which south african youth are growing up perspectives from developmental psychology the influences of race class and gender and of the media the book then reviews the evidence for effective interventions in the contexts of young people s lives their homes their schools their leisure activities with gangs in the criminal justice system in cities and neighbourhoods and with sexual offenders in doing so thoughtful suggestions are made for keeping an evidence based perspective while necessarily adapting interventions for developing world contexts such as south africa youth violence in south africa sources and solutions is a valuable addition to the library of anyone who has ever wondered about youth violence or wanted to do something about it

Reviews of National Policies for Education: South Africa 2008 2008-09-05 south africa has done well to systematically expand its educational system and to lengthen the schooling experience of successive learner cohorts but the quality of the output from the school system has been questioned in seeking to identify the reasons for this it is important to relate educational outputs competencies as measured for instance by examinations or standardized tests to inputs determining the relative contributions of the inputs of the school the household and the individual learner to educational outputs is not straightforward particularly since very little educational production function analysis has been undertaken in south africa until recently no south african school data has incorporated test results school characteristics and information on the household circumstances of individual learners necessary for this kind of analysis however the results from a survey of a sample of schools involved in the large scale quality learning project qlp funded by the business trust have yielded such data the qlp data set offers a new analytical opportunity to address the question what are the effects of social and economic variables on educational outcomes in the qlp schools
