pluchinsky's first volume focusing on anti-american terrorism is a densely packed and comprehensive look at one of the most complex US national security challenges our nation faces. It reflects the evolving nature of terrorism that has changed with the politics, technology, and media during this tumultuous period in US history. The book is also a thorough accounting of how US policymakers attempt to find solutions to address this dynamic issue. A broad spectrum of terrorism experts, policymakers, and casual readers will undoubtedly find noteworthy facts about terrorist attacks that targeted US interests abroad and at home. In this volume, Pluchinsky's level of detail and strong qualitative methodology makes this work an essential desk reference for any serious terrorism scholar. Studies in intelligence: this is a truly magisterial work of scholarship by pulling all this material together in one place and by organizing it so accessibly. Pluchinsky has performed an invaluable service for researchers and counterterrorism practitioners alike. The real selling point is the factual content. Pluchinsky has written the definitive contextual history of US counterterrorism policy, and these volumes, and I confidently expect the two companion volumes still to come, deserve a place in every serious library of terrorism critical studies. One of the major international security concerns that surfaced in the post-World War II period was the emergence and evolution of international terrorism. The dominant theme in the evolution of this threat has been anti-american terrorism. No other country in the world has had its overseas interests subjected to the level of lethality, diversity, and geographic scope of international terrorist activity than the United States. This four-volume work recounts the development of this threat through 12 US presidential administrations over a 70-year period. It assesses the terrorist threat in the US and overseas and how the government has responded with counterterrorism policies, strategies, programs, organizations, legislation, international conventions, executive orders, special operations units, and actions. The evolution of the field of terrorism in academia, think tanks, institutes, and the private sector over these 12 administrations is also chronicled. First published in 2005, Routledge is an imprint of Taylor & Francis, an Informa company. A body-focused trauma-informed art therapy that will appeal to art therapists, somatic experiencing practitioners, bodyworkers, artists, and mental health professionals. While art therapy traditionally focuses on therapeutic image-making and the cognitive or symbolic interpretation of these creations, Cornelia Elbrecht instructs readers how to facilitate the body-focused approach of guided drawing. Clients draw with both hands and eyes closed as they focus on their felt sense. Physical pain, tension, and emotions are expressed without words through bilateral scribbles. Clients then, with an almost massage-like approach, find movements that soothe their pain, discharge inner tension, and emotions, and repair boundary breaches. Archetypal shapes allow therapists to safely structure the experience in a nonverbal way. Sensorimotor art therapy is a unique and self-empowering application of somatic experiencing. It is both body-focused and trauma-informed in approach and assists clients who have experienced complex traumatic events to actively respond to overwhelming experiences until they feel less helpless and overwhelmed and are then able to repair their memories of the past. Elbrecht provides readers with the context of body-focused trauma-informed art therapy and walks them through the thinking behind and process of guided drawing, including 100 full-color images from client sessions that serve as helpful examples of the work. This volume collects the proceedings of the first Latin American Communist Conference organized in Buenos Aires, Argentina, in June 1929 by the South American Secretariat of the Moscow-based Communist International (Comintern). The conference was the first and, in some ways, only opportunity that communists in Latin America had to engage in a broad discussion of the most important problems and challenges that they faced. The topics that the assembled delegates addressed, including militarism, anti-imperialism, trade union issues, and racial discrimination, were all central to the question of how to organize a strong revolutionary movement. This major documentary collection of the Latin American Communist movement, newly translated into English and with a substantial introduction, remains surprisingly relevant to our world today. With an introduction by Victor Jifets and Lazar Jifets, why do people join social movements? What keeps them involved once they have joined? These central questions in the study of social movements are newly investigated in this study of the interwar Green Shirt Movement. The Green Shirts are the only assistants examines the linguistic relativity principle in relation to the hupa yurok and karuk indians despite centuries of intertribal contact the american indian peoples of northwestern california have continued to speak a variety of distinct languages at the same time they have come to embrace a common way of life based on salmon fishing and shared religious practices in this thought provoking re examination of the hypothesis of linguistic relativity sean o neill looks closely at the hupa yurok and karuk peoples to explore the striking juxtaposition between linguistic diversity and relative cultural uniformity among their communities o neill examines intertribal contact multilingualism storytelling and historical change among the three tribes focusing on the traditional culture of the region as it existed during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries he asks important historical questions at the heart of the linguistic relativity hypothesis have the languages in fact grown more similar as a result of contact multilingualism and cultural convergence or have they instead maintained some of their striking grammatical and semantic differences through comparison of the three languages o neill shows that long term contact among the tribes intensified their linguistic differences creating unique hupa yurok and karuk identities if language encapsulates worldview as the principle of linguistic relativity suggests then this region s linguistic diversity is puzzling analyzing patterns of linguistic accommodation as seen in the semantics of space and time grammatical classification and specialized cultural vocabularies o neill resolves the apparent paradox by assessing long term effects of contact pergamon general psychology series studies in dyadic communication focuses on the mechanics principles methodologies and approaches involved in dyadic the shifting role of aesthetics in latin american literature and literary studies focusing on the concept of ethical responsibility within these practices the contributing authors examine the act of reading in its new globalized context of postcolonial theory and gender and performance studies this book explores the localisation of modernity in late colonial india as a case study it focuses on the hitherto untold colonial history of khalsa college amritsar a pioneering and highly influential educational institution founded in the british indian province of punjab in 1892 by the religious minority community of the sikhs addressing topics such as politics religion rural development militarism or physical education the study shows how sikh educationalists and activists made use of and localised communal imperial national and transnational discourses and knowledge their modernist visions and schemes transcended both imperialist and mainstream nationalist frameworks and networks in its quest to educate the modern sikh scientific practical disciplined and physically fit the college navigated between very local and global claims opportunities and contingencies mirroring modernity s ambivalent simultaneity of universalism and particularism this book offers a unique developmental perspective on identity construction in the context of mobility and transition to adulthood drawing upon semiotic cultural psychology it embeds identity construction into the processes of meaning making viewing identity as a field of hyper generalised signs that are constantly reconstructed through encounters with social others in cultural worlds and which allow individuals to make sense of themselves in relation to their lived pasts experienced presents and imagined futures märtsin invites the reader to travel with eight young adults as they embark on their developmental journeys and seek to make sense of issues that matter most to them home adventure and belonging friendships recognition and future planning the book is an invaluable resource for students and researchers interested in understanding the experiences of emerging adults in contemporary globalized world but also for those interested in identity processes from a semiotic cultural and developmental perspective liberation theology is a school of roman catholic thought which teaches that a primary duty of the church must be to promote social and economic justice in this book christian smith explains how and why the liberation theology movement emerged and succeeded when and where it did a simpler life in a shadow cast by the jarring beginning of the new millennium simplicity has an undeniable appeal global conflicts domestic security concerns and a stalling economy can make keeping up with the joneses feel like at best a misguided luxury now is not a time for excess it is a time it would seem to focus on what really matters thus the appeal of voluntary simplicity a notion that combines the freedom of modernity with certain comforts and virtues of the past the authors in this volume speak to the what why and how of voluntary simplicity and even to some extent the where when and who those included range from contemporary academics to thinkers from the turn of the last century from ardent supporters to staunch critics they approach the subject from a variety of perspectives economic psychological sociological historical and theological each either implicitly or explicitly helps us explore the desirability and feasibility of voluntary simplicity one of the most beloved painters of the twentieth century giorgio morandi created works that continue to exert their mysterious power on viewers worldwide this publication focuses on the period from 1948 to 1964 during which morandi developed and refined his investigations of serial reductive and permutational forms and compositions a body of work that has had a profound influence on twentieth century art and painting included here are five of the ten iconic yellow cloth paintings from 1952 a series featured prominently in the historic 1998 exhibition at the peggy guggenheim collection in venice and numerous late paintings by the italian master lavishly reproduced these immersive plates draw attention to the idiosyncratic perspectival and color driven decisions that give the work its abstract power the catalogue is published on the occasion of the 2015 exhibition of morandi s paintings from this period at david zwirner new york which according to the new york times represent lucid perfection at once cerebral and impassioned it marked the first major presentation of the artist s late work in america since the acclaimed 2008 retrospective at the metropolitan museum of art new york in addition to an essay by laura mattioli and a foreword by david leiber who organized the exhibition this catalogue includes a fantastic array of contributions by contemporary artists john baldessari lawrence carroll vija celmins mark greenwold liu ye wayne thiebaud alexi worth and zeng fanzhi they offer their personal responses to morandi s work and to the zwirner exhibition in particular working in different media across many disciplines this diverse list of contributors is a testament to the reach of morandi s paintings and their influence on contemporary art this anthology explores how theatre and performance use home as the prism through which we reconcile shifts in national cultural and personal identity whether examining parlor dramas and kitchen sink realism site specific theatre travelling tent shows domestic labor border performances fences or front yards these essays demonstrate how dreams of home are enmeshed with notions of neighborhood community politics and memory recognizing the family home as a symbolic space that extends far beyond its walls the nine contributors to this collection study diverse english language performances from the us ireland and canada these scholars of theatre history dramaturgy performance cultural studies feminist and gender studies and critical race studies also consider the value of home at a time increasingly defined by crises of homelessness a moment when major cities face affordable housing shortages when debates about homeland and citizenship have dominated international elections and when conflicts and natural disasters have displaced millions global struggles over immigration sanctuary refugee status and migrant labor make the stakes of home and homelessness ever more urgent and visible as this timely collection reveals the uprising in tunisia has come to be seen as the first true revolution of the twenty first century one that kick started the series of upheavals across the region now known as the arab spring in this remarkable work alcinda honwana goes beyond superficial accounts of what occurred to explore the defining role of the country s youth and in particular the cyber activist drawing on fresh testimony from those who shaped events the book describes in detail the experiences of young activists through the 29 days of the revolution and the challenges they encountered after the fall of the regime and the dismantling of the ruling party now as old and newly established political forces are moving into the political void created by ben ali s departure tensions between the older and younger generations are sharpening an essential account of an event that has inspired the world and its potential repercussions for the middle east africa and beyond in september 2011 two leading civic engagement advocacy organizations headed respectively by robert putnam and peter levine released a joint report showing that a region s level of civic engagement was a strong predictor of its ability to recover from the great recession this finding confirms what advocates of civic engagement have long hypothesized that strengthening the networks between government and civil society and increasing citizen participation results in better government and better community outcomes however citizens concerned about the economic crisis need more than just deliberation or community organizing alone to achieve these outcomes what they need according to peter levine is a movement devoted to civic renewal deliberative democracy the idea that true democratic legitimacy derives from open inclusive discussion and dialogue rather than simple voting has become an extremely influential concept in the last two decades in we are the ones we have been waiting for peter levine contends that effective deliberative democracy depends upon effective community advocacy deliberation he shows is most valuable when talk and debate are integrated into a community s everyday life to illustrate how it works levine draws lessons from both community organizing and developmental psychology and uses examples of successful efforts from communities across america as well as fledgling democracies in africa and eastern europe by engaging in this type of civic work american citizens can meaningfully contribute to civic renewal which in turn will address serious social problems that cannot be fixed in any other way emphasising location specific human experience examines the linguistic relativity principle in relation to the hupa yurok and karuk indians despite centuries of intertribal contact the american indian peoples of northwestern california have continued to speak a variety of distinct languages at the same time they have come to embrace a common way of life based on salmon fishing and shared religious practices in this thought provoking re examination of the hypothesis of linguistic relativity sean o neill looks closely at the hupa yurok and karuk peoples to explore the striking juxtaposition between linguistic diversity and relative cultural uniformity among their communities o neill examines intertribal contact multilingualism storytelling and historical change among the three tribes focusing on the traditional culture of the region as it existed during the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries he asks important historical questions at the heart of the linguistic relativity hypothesis have the languages in fact grown more similar as a result of contact multilingualism and cultural convergence or have they instead maintained some of their striking grammatical and semantic differences through comparison of the three languages o neill shows that long term contact among the tribes intensified their linguistic differences creating unique hupa yurok and karuk identities if language encapsulates worldview as the principle of linguistic relativity suggests then this region s linguistic diversity is puzzling analyzing patterns of linguistic accommodation as seen in the semantics of space and time grammatical classification and specialized cultural vocabularies o neill resolves the apparent paradox by assessing long term effects of contact in september 2011 two leading civic engagement advocacy organizations headed respectively by robert putnam and peter levine released a joint report showing that a region s level of civic engagement was a strong predictor of its ability to recover from the great recession this finding confirms what advocates of civic engagement have long hypothesized that strengthening the networks between government and civil society and increasing citizen participation results in better government and better community outcomes however citizens concerned about the economic crisis need more than just deliberation or community organizing alone to achieve these outcomes what they need according to peter levine is a movement devoted to civic renewal deliberative democracy the idea that true democratic legitimacy derives from open inclusive discussion and dialogue rather than simple voting has become an extremely influential concept in the last two decades in we are the ones we have been waiting for peter levine contends that effective deliberative democracy depends upon effective community advocacy deliberation he shows is most valuable when talk and debate are integrated into a community s everyday life to illustrate how it works levine draws lessons from both community organizing and developmental psychology and uses examples of successful efforts from communities across america as well as fledgling democracies in africa and eastern europe by engaging in this type of civic work american citizens can meaningfully contribute to civic renewal which in turn will address serious social problems that cannot be fixed in any other way
