constructing gardens cultivating the city is the first cultural history of major new parks developed in paris in the late twentieth century as part of the city s program of adaptive reuse of industrial spaces thanks to laws that gave the city more political autonomy paris s local government launched a campaign of park creation in the late 1970s that continued to the turn of the millennium the parks in this book represent this campaign and illustrate different facets of their cultural and historical context archival research interviews and analyses of the parks reveal how postmodern debates about urban planning the historic city public space and nature s presence in an urban setting influenced their designs in sum the city adopted the garden as a model for public parks investing in complex richly symbolic and representational spaces these parks were intended to represent contemporary twists on traditional designs and serve local residents as much as they would contribute to paris s role as a world city the parks development process often included points of conflict pointing to differing views on what parisian space should represent and fundamental contradictions between the characteristics of public space and the garden as it is traditionally defined these parks demonstrate the ongoing cultivation of the city over time in which transformed sites not only fulfil new functions but also engage with history and their surroundings to create new meaning they stand for landscape as a form of signifying cultural production that directly engages with other art forms and ways of knowing just as the luxembourg gardens the tuileries and the buttes chaumont parks exemplify their eras cultural dynamics such parks as the jardin atlantique parc andré citroën and the jardin des halles express contemporary french culture within the archetypal space of their era the city finally they point the way to current trends in landscape architecture such as citizen gardening and ecological initiatives contemporary art is often preoccupied with time or acts in which the past is recovered through specific case studies of artists who strategically work with historical moments this book examines how art from the last two decades has sought to mobilize these particular histories and to what effect against the backdrop of modernism drawing on the art theory of rosalind krauss and the philosophies of paul ricoeur gerhard richter and pierre nora retroactivity and contemporary art interprets those works that foreground some aspect of retroactivity whether re enacting commemorating or re imagining as key artistic strategies this book is striking philosophical reflection on time within art and art within time and an indispensable read for those attempting to understand the artistic significance of history materiality and memory
