work is deeply embedded in the moral and political character of most societies for many work becomes fused with our personal and social identities who we are and how we define ourselves steve fineman explores the key debates about work and the factors that affect it including topics such as globalization feminism and technology responsible management of shifts in work modes values for post pandemic sustainability volume 2 explores ethical leadership people management resilience and the management of consequences for business and healthcare systems stephan klasen is considered one of the most distinguished scholars on gender economics in the 21st century over the past 25 years he has tirelessly worked to understand the complex phenomena of gender inequality from counting the number of missing women in the world and shedding light on why women go missing to showing that leaving girls out of school not only deprives them but also robs society of the opportunity to thrive on the talents of its entire population from understanding why equal rights and rising incomes everywhere have not resulted in women participating more at work to measuring gender inequality in its various dimensions this volume a collection of some of stephan klasen s most important writings on the topic of gender inequality honours his academic life and gives the reader an in depth insight into both what we know and don t yet know about the economics of gender inequality the central focus of this publication is the synthesis of science and art in the field of visual perception in particular how early 19th century perceptual research into illusions kinetic illusory figures and illusory movement influenced the apparative machine kinetic art of the 20th century and the computer generated visual art of the 21st century professional artists have traditionally used innovative scientific inventions involving light and perspective for their work as well as making use of visual aids since the beginning of the 1920s artists like marcel duchamp have been experimenting with illusory movement based on these early ideas and artistic experiments and due to its relationship with illusory space there was a renewed interest in illusory contour especially among representatives of kinetic art and op art seeing motion provides an historical overview extending from the theories of experimental visual perception research hermann helmholtz ernst mach sigmund exner wilhelm stern vittorio benussi max wertheim george stratton ivo kohler to apparative art alfons schilling and electronic digital art jeffrey shaw peter weibel anthropologists and world historians make strange bedfellows although the latter frequently employ anthropological methods in their descriptions of cross cultural exchanges the former have raised substantial reservations about global approaches to history fearing loss of specificity anthropologists object to the effacing qualities of techniques employed by world historians this despite the fact that anthropology itself was a global comparative enterprise in the nineteenth century rainer buschmann here seeks to recover some of anthropology s global flavor by viewing its history in oceania through the notion of the ethnographic frontier the furthestmost limits of the anthropologically known regions of the pacific the colony of german new guinea 1884 1914 presents an ideal example of just such a contact zone colonial administrators there were drawn to approaches partially inspired by anthropology anthropologists and museum officials exploited this interest by preparing large scale expeditions to german new guinea buschmann explores the resulting interactions between german colonial officials resident ethnographic collectors and indigenous peoples arguing that all were instrumental in the formation of anthropological theory he shows how changes in collecting aims and methods helped shift ethnographic study away from its focus on material artifacts to a broader consideration of indigenous culture he also shows how ethnological collecting often a competitive affair could become politicized and connect to national concerns finally he places the german experience in the broader context of euro american anthropology anthropology s global histories will interest meditation is open for everyone sitting silently in a hall breathing sensing the body seeing the light reflected from the floor being in touch with the people around who or what are we to be nobody special can it be enough to flow with the stream of aliveness which is here in utter simplicity no separation no wanting no missing when no separating thoughts or feelings appear everything is complete as it is how do we live our everyday lives is there space to open up to become aware are we truly in touch with what surrounds us or what is inside of us honestly our lives are crowded with constant thoughts actions and reactions we are often overwhelmed and we switch to autopilot to get through the daily challenges are we victims of our automated programs is it inevitable to live most of the time in chaos feeling helplessly exposed to a world that offers not even a moment to contemplate the central expression of this book is awareness awareness is a state of being present in the actual moment being here in the actual truth that unfolds directly in front of our eyes everything is already complete here can we simply sense it feel it without judgment without knowledge or explanation no need to identify with anything what drives us the impulses to act are we aware of them a new understanding of all life and nature including us may dawn from such simple silent awareness not a new concept of the world or of who we are concepts are part of the observed awareness is an understanding emerging from the truth of this moment
