how to raise kids who aren't assholes is a clear, actionable, sometimes humorous but always science-based guide for parents on how to shape their kids into honest, kind, generous, confident, independent, and resilient people who just might save the world one day. As an award-winning science journalist, Melinda Wenner Moyer was regularly asked to investigate and address all kinds of parenting questions: how to potty train, when and whether to get vaccines, and how to help kids sleep through the night. But as Melinda's children grew, she found that one huge area was ignored in the realm of parenting advice: how do we make sure our kids don't grow up to be assholes on social media, in the news, and from the highest levels of government? Kids are increasingly getting the message that being selfish, obnoxious, and cruel is okay. Hate crimes among children and teens are rising, while compassion among teens has been dropping. We know of course that young people have the capacity for great empathy, resilience, and action, and we all want to bring up kids who will help build a better tomorrow. But how do we actually do this? How do we raise children who are kind, considerate, and ethical, inside and outside the home, who will grow into adults committed to making the world a better place? How to Raise Kids Who Aren't Assholes is a deeply researched, evidence-based primer that provides a fresh, often surprising perspective on parenting issues from toddlerhood through the teenage years. First, Melinda outlines the traits we want our children to possess, including honesty, generosity, and antiracism, and then she provides scientifically based strategies that will help parents instill those characteristics in their kids. Learn how to raise the kind of kids you actually want to hang out with, and who just might save the world.

this document is a methodology for trying to understand how i think and why i think as i do my thinking process is premise based i operate on the premise that evolutionary genetic traits have more or less programmed the basic capabilities and limitations of the starting initial conditions of my particular human nature from this point considering the environmental conditions from conception through embryology all internal external responses are learned given full consideration to the capabilities and limitations mentioned above of my personal human nature i also operate in the philosophical mode which i try to maintain at all times on the premise that i am finite being finite limits the data available for making absolute truthful observations and therefore decisions this being the case i cannot believe or disbelieve anything knowing that one cannot function in this limbo i have formulated premises that i live by they are somewhat found depending on new data or current situations because of this i find that my premises are sometimes conflicting and contrary to one another that is just the way it is i live with it author s thought after the fact shades of aristotle platos socrates descartes spinoza hegel and peirce but more primitive juvenile and sophomoric but isn t that when we start to realize who we are a basic primer on how to think
