globalization the increasing interconnectedness of societies economies and cultures is a defining feature of contemporary social life paradoxically it underlies both the dynamics of global crises e g rising inequality climate change and the possibilities for ameliorating them thus globalization can be defined as the stretching of economic political and social relationships in space and time a manufacturer assembling a product for a distant market a country submitting to international law and a language adopting a foreign loanword are all examples of globalization social globalization enables people in very remote areas of the world to communicate with each other while political globalization forces governments to be transparent about infectious diseases with economic globalization increased economic activity may lead to urbanization globalization is a term used to describe how trade and technology have made the world into a more connected and interdependent place globalization also captures in its scope the economic and social changes that have come about as a result a growing body of scholarship acknowledges the increasing influence of global forces on social institutions and societies on multiple scales we focus here on the role of globalization processes in shaping collective action and social movements globalization is the extension of social relations across world space defining that world space in terms of the historically variable ways that it has been practiced and socially understood through changing world time what s the fate of globalization new research breaks down changes in the global flows that bind us together and what those changes mean for our collective future the social dimension of globalization refers to the impact of globalization on the life and work of people on their families and their societies concerns and issues are often raised about the impact of globalization on employment working conditions income and social protection in
