The Insatiable Bark Beetle 2011 a riveting portrait of a rural pennsylvania town at the center of the fracking controversy shale gas extraction commonly known as fracking is often portrayed as an energy revolution that will transform the american economy and geopolitics but in greater williamsport pennsylvania fracking is personal up to heaven and down to hell is a vivid and sometimes heartbreaking account of what happens when one of the most momentous decisions about the well being of our communities and our planet whether or not to extract shale gas and oil from the very land beneath our feet is largely a private choice that millions of ordinary people make without the public s consent the united states is the only country in the world where property rights commonly extend up to heaven and down to hell which means that landowners have the exclusive right to lease their subsurface mineral estates to petroleum companies colin jerolmack spent eight months living with rural communities outside of williamsport as they confronted the tension between property rights and the commonwealth in this deeply intimate book he reveals how the decision to lease brings financial rewards but can also cause irreparable harm to neighbors to communal resources like air and water and even to oneself up to heaven and down to hell casts america s ideas about freedom and property rights in a troubling new light revealing how your personal choices can undermine your neighbors liberty and how the exercise of individual rights can bring unintended environmental consequences for us all
