general language english comment cite as bakhtiyari kaveh salehi hadi embi mohamed amin shakiba masoud zavvari azam shahbazi moghadam masoomeh mohammadjafari marjan 2014 ethical and unethical methods of plagiarism prevention in academic writing international education studies 7 7 52 62 doi 10 5539 ies v7n7p52 abstract this paper discusses plagiarism origins and the ethical solutions to prevent it it also reviews some unethical approaches which may be used to decrease the plagiarism rate in academic writings we propose eight ethical techniques to avoid unconscious and accidental plagiarism in manuscripts without using online systems such as turnitin and or ithenticate for cross checking and plagiarism detection the efficiency of the proposed techniques is evaluated on five different texts using students individually after application of the techniques on the texts they were checked by turnitin to produce the plagiarism and similarity report at the end the effective factor of each method has been compared with each other and the best result went to a hybrid combination of all techniques to avoid plagiarism the hybrid of ethical methods decreased the plagiarism rate reported by turnitin from nearly 100 to the average of 8 4 on 5 manuscripts stig kanger 1924 1988 made important contributions to logic and formal philosophy kanger s dissertation provability in logic 1957 contained significant results in proof theory as well as the first fully worked out model theoretic interpretation of quantified modal logic it is generally accepted nowadays that kanger was one of the originators of possible worlds semantics for modal logic kanger s most original achievements were in the areas of general proof theory the semantics of modal and deontic logic and the logical analysis of the concept of rights he also contributed to action theory preference logic and the theory of measurement this is the first of two volumes dedicated to the work of stig kanger the present volume is a complete collection of kanger s philosophical papers the second volume contains critical essays on kanger s work as well as biographical essays on kanger written by colleagues and friends bernard williams begins his skeptical look at the history of ethical theory with a reminder of where it began with socrates question how should one live if ethics aims to address the question of how one should live then the work of historians may just be our greatest source of what mill called experiments in living or narratives about the different ways in which humans have lived williams claimed that distance establishes a relativism that prevents us from looking to the distant past and asking whether that is how one should live or whether a particular historical practice constituted living well in contrast r g collingwood claimed that it is not only possible but necessary to hold the beliefs of distant agents in order to avoid scissors and paste history or history that makes use of inductive generalization surveying seven decades worth of historical writing on the conflict between the us and japan during world war ii this book explores the ways in which historians use moral statements in their writing and particularly in their accounts of political leadership specifically it identifies six distinct modes of moral reasoning used in history and contrasts these modes of reasoning with the kantian utilitarian and aristotelian modes of reasoning found in traditional moral philosophy finally drawing on the philosophy of history of both williams and collingwood the book reconciles skepticism with the possibility of using the past to understand how one should live with the historian s need to avoid scissors and paste history introduces christian ethics to a new generation of students this book contains model answers to the questions and case studies asked in general studies iv gs 4 civil services mains paper from 2013 to 2019 with detailed information on the background framework of the question likely answer it is important to note that as a subject in civil services examination gs 4 is the only subject where we have comparatively well defined syllabus and paper pattern because of this each individual can score good marks in the paper with lesser efforts as compared to other general studies papers i e if you dedicate 15 20 days to this subject you will not just learn about the complete subject but you can score much more as compared to other general studies paper as they require much more time because of their dynamic nature if we consider the previous year question papers of general studies iv the questions were divided into two parts as 1 theory based questions based on the theoretical aspects of the ethics and 2 case studies based on the actual or probable life situations the answers are divided into two portions with first one detailing about the framework of the answer or background of the question giving details about the basic idea of the question or the form of case study the second part is the model answer giving wider inputs on the question we hope that wider considerations will help the reader in understanding the question and how to structure the answer based on the question this is the first book length study of bilingual international and immigrant students in english writing courses that attempts to fully embed their writing experiences within the broader frame of their personal histories the human context of their development and the disciplinary contexts of their majors it addresses the questions how useful are l2 writing courses for the students who are required to take them what do the students carry with them from these courses to their other disciplinary courses across the curriculum what happens to these students after they leave esl english or writing classes drawing on data from a 5 year longitudinal study of four university students for whom english was not their strongest primary bernard williams begins his skeptical look at the history of ethical theory with a reminder of where it began with socrates question how should one live if ethics aims to address the question of how one should live then the work of historians may just be our greatest source of what mill called experiments in living or narratives about the different ways in which humans have lived williams claimed that distance establishes a relativism that prevents us from looking to the distant past and asking whether that is how one should live or whether a particular historical practice constituted living well in contrast r.g. collingwood claimed that it is not only possible but necessary to hold the beliefs of distant agents in order to avoid scissors and paste history or history that makes use of inductive generalization surveying seven decades worth of historical writing on the conflict between the us and japan during world war ii this book explores the ways in which historians use moral statements in their writing and particularly in their accounts of political leadership specifically it identifies six distinct modes of moral reasoning used in history and contrasts these modes of reasoning with the kantian utilitarian and aristotelian modes of reasoning found in traditional moral philosophy finally drawing on the philosophy of history of both williams and collingwood the book reconciles skepticism with the possibility of using the past to understand how one should live with the historian's need to avoid scissors and paste history
