The African American Writer's Handbook 2009-03-04 perhaps the brevity of short fiction accounts for the relatively scant attention devoted to it by scholars who have historically concentrated on longer prose narratives the geographies of african american short fiction seeks to fill this gap by analyzing the ways african american short story writers plotted a diverse range of characters across multiple locations small towns a famous metropolis city sidewalks a rural wooded area apartment buildings a pond a general store a prison and more in the process these writers highlighted the extents to which places and spaces shaped or situated racial representations presenting african american short story writers as cultural cartographers author kenton rambsy documents the variety of geographical references within their short stories to show how these authors make cultural spaces integral to their artwork and inscribe their stories with layered and resonant social histories the history of these short stories also documents the circulation of compositions across dozens of literary collections for nearly a century anthology editors solidified the significance of a core group of short story authors including james baldwin toni cade bambara charles chesnutt ralph ellison zora neale hurston and richard wright using quantitative information and an extensive literary dataset the geographies of african american short fiction explores how editorial practices shaped the canon of african american short fiction

Black Caucus of ALA Newsletter 1994 author toni morrison stressed the need to analyze race in american literature by white authors by shifting focus from the racial object to the racial subject representations of whiteness in certain works by asian american authors reveal what happens when the visual dynamics of ethnography are reversed and those persons often considered as objects asian americans other minorities are allowed to see and judge those who so often objectify them this study emphasizes social power structures the aesthetics of whiteness and transformational identity politics works examined Visions of Whiteness in Selected Works of Asian American Literature 2015-03-07 as an anthropology student studying with franz boas zora neale hurston recorded african american folklore in rural central florida studied hoodoo in new orleans and voodoo in haiti talked with the last ex slave to survive the middle passage and collected music from jamaica her ethnographic work would serve as the basis for her novels and other writings in which she shaped a vision of african american southern rural folk culture articulated through an antiracist concept of culture championed by boas culture as plural relative and long lived meanwhile a very different antiracist model of culture learned from robert park s sociology allowed richard wright to imagine african american culture in terms of severed traditions marginal consciousness and generation gaps in a genealogy of literary multiculturalism christopher douglas uncovers the largely unacknowledged role played by ideas from sociology and anthropology in nourishing the politics and forms of minority writers from diverse backgrounds douglas divides the history of multicultural writing in the united states into three periods the first which spans the 1920s and 1930s features minority writers such as hurston and d arcy mcnicke who were indebted to the work of boas and his attempts to detach culture from race the second period from 1940 to the mid 1960s was a time of assimilation and integration as seen in the work of authors such as richard wright jade snow wong john okada and ralph ellison who were influenced by currents in sociological thought the third period focuses on the writers we associate with contemporary literary multiculturalism including toni morrison n scott momaday frank chin ishmael reed and gloria anzaldúa douglas shows that these more recent writers advocated a literary nationalism that was based on a modified boasian anthropology and that laid the pluralist grounds for our current conception of literary multiculturalism ultimately douglas s unified field theory of multicultural literature brings together divergent african american asian american mexican american and native american literary traditions into one story of how we moved from thinking about groups as races to thinking about groups as cultures and then back again
