positions of power through activism in women's organizations informal women's networks and even male dominated lobbying groups in the great debate over whether america should enter the war some women favored aid to the allies not because they hoped for war but because they hoped aid would forestall more direct u s involvement but also because they believed war was preferable to a nazi victory paton walsh shows that this activism involved some of the most prominent women of their day elizabeth cutter morrow whose son in law charles lindbergh was an isolationist spokesman supported the revision of the neutrality acts to allow the sale of arms to the allies and expressed her support in a national radio broadcast soon other women joined this debate esther brunauer of the aaup journalist dorothy thompson and organizations like the league of women voters and national women's trade union league broke from the pacifist tradition to advocate american aid for the allied cause focusing on the conflict in europe paton walsh shows how these women grasped the implications of the lend lease program for america's entry into the war but supported it nevertheless by late 1941 the women's division of the fight for freedom committee had been established no longer merely advocating aid to britain to keep american boys out of battle this organization supported direct american involvement in the war as a means of stopping nazi oppression while most historians have focused on women's pacifism paton walsh connects women more directly to world events and shows how those interventionists reformulated maternalist ideas to justify and explain their beliefs our war too is a story of american women trying to reconcile the irreconcilable to preserve both their principles and their peace it expands our understanding of women as political actors and thinkers about foreign policy as it sheds new light on american public opinion over the build up to the war

from the preface the theory of optimal design of experiments as we know it today is built on a solid foundation developed by Jack Kiefer who formulated and resolved some of the major problems of data collection via experimentation a principal ingredient in his formulation was statistical efficiency of a design Kiefer's theoretical contributions to optimal designs can be broadly classified into several categories he rigorously defined developed and interrelated statistical notions of optimality he developed powerful tools for verifying and searching for optimal designs this includes the averaging technique for approximate or exact theory and patchwork for exact theory Kiefer and Wolfowitz provided a theorem now known as the equivalence theorem this result has become a classical theorem in the field one important feature of this theorem is that it provides a measure of how far a given design is from the optimal design he characterized and constructed families of optimal designs some of the celebrated ones are balanced block designs generalized Youden designs and weighing designs he also developed combinatorial structures of these designs Kiefer's papers are sometimes difficult in part this is due to the precision and care he exercised which at times forced a consideration of pathologies and special cases a reading of his papers on design is replete with examples of his scholarship his innovativeness ingenuity and strength as a researcher
