since the referendum on scottish independence in september 2014 interest on national and local identity in scotland has soared anticipating this interest the present analysis focuses on two major aspects the local vernacular as employed in hawick scottish borders and its usage in the school context at hawick high school the emphasis lies on the present linguistic situation in terms of language usage and attitudes of both pupils and teachers the study supplies a brief social linguistic and historical outline of the hawick community and southern scots the main part of the thesis is subdivided into two sections firstly the linguistic situation in hawick in general is illustrated and extralinguistic variables are taken into account whenever they prove to be statistically significant secondly language use and attitudes towards the vernacular in the school context are explored the conclusion summarizes the most important results and might serve as an impetus for further dialect and attitude studies literacy is about 5 000 years old since it was invented it has transformed human societies and knowledge fundamentally indeed civilisation is built on literacy what is it about the process of making marks on paper or other surfaces that gives literacy this remarkable power the literate mind a study of its scope and limitations proposes that the evolved pre literate qualities of the human mind combined with the representational review answers of alphabets and other symbol systems provide uniquely powerful means for the generation and storage of knowledge the creation storage and sharing of texts augment the social and cognitive capacities of human minds and allow us to develop social institutions within which further new knowledge can be deployed and used taking an approach that is equally applicable to print and digital media the book draws on evolutionary theory and the theory of computation to explain the remarkable power of literacy and its transformational effects on human society and knowledge it demonstrates that the universe of possible texts is infinite in extent and proposes that the combination of a reader and a text can be treated as an ecosystem of unlimited scope

Language Attitudes in Hawick: An Empirical Study 1969

the book takes up the subject of dictionary use from the perspective of advanced learners the study aims to explore the effects of the use of a monolingual learner's dictionary on students performance in a complex comprehension task i e the task of interpreting fragments with modified idioms which often disrupt the fluent reading process the theoretical part summarises the results of lexicographic research in the field of receptive dictionary use and discusses its methodological aspects moreover it introduces relevant elements of the reading theory and analyses the nature of idiomatic expressions their transformations in particular from a psycholinguistic point of view finally problems connected with the presentation of idioms in monolingual learner s dictionaries are highlighted the major empirical part reports on an experiment whose aim was to find connections between the consultation process the way of presenting lexicographic information on idioms and comprehension scores the results reveal a mildly positive influence of the monolingual learner s dictionary on reading comprehension performance among the reasons for underachievement were misinterpretation of entries and insufficient processing of dictionary information in context
