writing in french in the 1950s ferdinand léopold oyono 1929 2010 had only a brief literary career but his anticolonialist novels are considered classics of twentieth century african literature like oyono s houseboy also available from waveland press this novel fiercely satirizes the false pretenses of european colonial rule in africa meka a village elder has always been loyal to the white man it is with pride that he first hears he is to receive a medal while waiting for the ceremony however meka s pride gives way to skepticism at the same time his wife has realized that the medal is being given to her husband as compensation for the sacrifices they have made the events following the ceremony confirm meka s new estimation of the white man both subtle and oftentimes humorous this beautifully told story lays bare the hollowness of the mission in africa it fuels opportunities for discussing colonial politics around class and race as well as for exploring indigenous cameroon life and values

Creative Responses of Mongo Beti and Ferdinand Oyono to Historical Realities in Cameroun scientific essay from the year 2015 in the subject literature Africa University of Botswana language English abstract this study intends to compare the portrayal of conflict in Ferdinand Oyono's Houseboy and Nadine Gordimer's July's People specifically it looks at how the black servant is forced to balance the loyalty he has for the white employer and for his African roots the analysis of Houseboy will focus on how conflict is represented between whites and blacks how it can satirically have a positive influence on others and lastly how conflict among the blacks can be very destructive Houseboy shows how conflict can be prompted by stereotypes how it can be a shield from other pressing concerns and even how conflict itself can provide an outlet for humour the analysis of July's People will on the other hand focus on how people can live together under pretences that they are at peace with one another when in actual fact they are not how the black servant can be in conflict with people of other races or their traditions as well as how that servant can be in conflict with fate or destiny in conclusion it will be shown how Houseboy is more explicit in portraying conflict than July's People due to the events that happened in the two texts an argument can be made therefore if conflict experienced by black servants during the colonial period was more in the open as opposed to that of apartheid South Africa les mille problèmes que nous pose ferdinand oyono s insinuent en nous avec une facilité peu commune d être si naturels et si naturellement exprimés n enlève rien à leur poids qui est immense et e n est pas un petit plaisir que de constater à quel point le tragique sans éclats ostentatoires convient à ferdinand oyono combat ce livre est de ceux qui ne laissent pas le lecteur en paix le problème qu il pose de la cohabitation de deux races et de deux civilisations ne doit pourtant pas faire passer sous silence ses qualités littéraires un style puissant qui décuple la force des adjectifs comme le soleil équatorial multiplie les dimensions des arbres tout ici est gigantesque charles bernard la tribune de lausanne cet ouvrage est un hommage mérité à un classique africain ii laisse notamment observer que chez oyono la diplomatie est nourrie de littérature la verve littéraire vient au secours de la diplomatie le haut fonctionnaire se profile à travers les dédales d une vie marquée par l expérience accumulée à divers postes de responsabilité celui qu on surnomme volontiers le vieux nègre n est pas à proprement parler un homme politique au sens couramment donné à ce concept chez nous compagnon fidèle du président biya il chemine non sans porter des marques particulières à un destin qu'il conduit du haut de son imposante stature l'originalité du romancier n'est pas vraiment d'avoir témoigné du fait colonial son mérite est d'avoir construit un univers de représentations où la verve cornique donne la main à l'écriture tragique pour alimenter une satire sociale captivante où les personnages incarnent des types humains où l'hypoculture bulu fang bété s'épanche d'une œuvre à l'autre dans toute sa truculence son éloquence sa richesse et sa diversité pour traduire des valeurs autochtones où la langue française prend en charge l'expression des us et coutumes ainsi que des valeurs identitaires endogènes oyono donne la preuve que le français peut et doit exprimer l'âme africaine c'est une langue dont la norme peut être respectée avec des utilisateurs décomplexés et émancipés qui ne se renient pas independence generated the promise of a better future for the ethnically diverse populations of african countries but during the past thirty years economic and political crises have called into question the legitimacy of speaking about nationhood in africa richard bjornson argues here that a national consciousness can indeed be seen in the shared systems of references made possible by the emergence of literate cultures by tracing the evolution of literate culture in cameroon from the colonial period to the present and by examining a broad spectrum of writing in its social political economic and cultural contexts bjornson shows how the concepts of freedom and identity have become the dominant concerns of the country's writers and he relates those themes to the history of cameroon's as a complex modern state bjornson also analyzes in detail works by writers such as mongo beti ferdinand oyono marcién towa guillaume oyono mbia rena c philombe and francis bebey this is a cogent analysis of the complexities of gender in the work of nine contemporary anglophone and francophone novelists offers illuminating interpretations of worthy writers multicultural review this book reaffirms bessie head s remark that books are a tool in this case a tool that allows readers to understand better the rich lives and the condition of african women excellent notes and a rich bibliography choice a college level analysis which will appeal to any interested in african studies and literature the bookwatch this book applies gender as a category of analysis to the works of nine sub saharan women writers aidoo bá beyala dangarembga emecheta head liking tlali and zanga tsogo the author appropriates western feminist theories of gender in an african literary context and in the process she finds and names critical theory that is african indigenous self determining which she then melds with western feminist theory and comes out with an over arching theory that enriches western post colonial and african critical perspectives the novel remains the most popular genre in the african literary landscape in the very large body of criticism that has been devoted to the craft of african fiction this very stimulating study of six african novels will hold its own distinctive place for a long while it brings to african critical thought not only an exceptional acumen of interpretation and analysis but something much more important to most of the previous serious literary study than mere technical dissection a keen sense of the experience and imaginative truth that make asong s selected african texts living books as well as authentic record of human and moral values many of asong s perceptions are not only critically shrewd but humanly searching alert to aesthetic quality and invention no one interested in creative criticism of african fiction will read this book without finding its approach a challenge to his or her own reading of african fiction and a stimulus to understanding the growth and enduring richness of the best of the african novel the book balances nicely in its choice of three texts in english and three in french the two dominant colonial languages in africa south of the sahara even more interesting is the fact that although all the french texts have been translated into english asong opts to treat the three in the original language in which they were conceived and executed a decision which keeps the reader as close as possible to the original idiom
