many preachers and teachers of preaching talk about the gospel few name it theologies of the gospel in context assembles a gifted group of homileticians who think that preachers need to be able to articulate the gospel not in general but in a certain time and place in context they consider what gospel sounds like for people under oppression in capitalist economies in neocolonial contexts for survivors of trauma and for disestablished mainline churches marred by racism preachers will appreciate these preacher scholars desire to articulate the gospel with clarity especially since the term is so often left unexplained homileticians will see a new genre of doing their work as teachers and researchers in preaching a vision that helps preaching see itself not just as an adjunct to exegesis or communication but a place of doing theology in these pages homiletics is more than technique it is a truly theological discipline

Inside Reading 2009

the suggestion that the new testament contains citations of early christological hymns has long been a controversial issue in new testament scholarship as a way of advancing this facet of new testament research matthew e gordley examines the colossian hymn col 1 15 20 in light of its cultural and epistolary contexts as a result of a broad comparative analysis he claims that col 1 15 20 is a citation of a prose hymn which represents a fusion of jewish and greco roman conventions for praising an exalted figure a review of hymns in the literature of second temple judaism demonstrates that the colossian hymn owes a number of features to jewish modes of praise likewise a review of hymns in the broader greco roman world demonstrates that the colossian hymn is equally indebted to conventions used for praising the divine in the greco roman tradition in light of these hymnic traditions of antiquity the analysis of the form and content of the colossian hymn shows how the passage fits well into a greco roman context and indicates that it is best understood as a quasi philosophical prose hymn cited in the context of a paraenetic letter finally in view of ancient epistolary and rhetorical theory and practice an analysis of the role of the hymn in colossians suggests that the hymn serves a number of significant rhetorical functions throughout the remainder of the letter context is what contributes to interpret a communicative act beyond the spoken words it provides information essential to clarify the intentions of a speaker and thus to identify the actual meaning of an utterance a large amount of research in pragmatics has shown how wide ranging and multifaceted this concept can be context spans from the preceding words in a conversation to the general knowledge that the interlocutors supposedly share from the perceived environment to features and traits that the participants in a dialogue attribute to each other this last category is also very broad since it includes mental and emotional states together with culturally constructed knowledge such as the reciprocal identification of social roles and positions the assumption of a cognitive point of view brings to the foreground a number of new questions regarding how information about the context is organized in the mind and how this kind of knowledge is used in specific communicative situations a related very important question concerns the role played in this process by theory of mind abilities tom both in typical and atypical populations in this research topic we bring together articles that address different aspects of context analysis from theoretical and empirical perspectives integrating knowledge and methods derived from philosophy of language linguistics cognitive science cognitive neuroscience developmental and clinical psychology the city of carchemish in the valley of the euphrates river can be regarded as one of the iconic sites in the middle east a mound complex known both for its own intrinsic qualities as the seat of later hittite power and neo hittite kings but also because its history of excavations included well known historical figures such as leonard woolley and t e lawrence however because of its location within the military zone of the turkish syrian border the site itself has been inaccessible to archaeologists for more than 90 years carchemish in context summarises the results of regional investigations conducted within the land of carchemish project in syria as well as other archaeological surveys in the region in order to provide a regional historical and archaeological context for the development of the city a synthesis of the history of carchemish is presented and a regional overview of the land of carchemish as it is defined by archaeological features and key historical references through to the early iron age insightful snapshots of the dynamics of an ancient state are revealed which can now be seen to have fluctuated dramatically in size throughout 700 800 years in part depending upon the power of the king of carchemish or the aggressions of external powers the results from the project provide an overview of the main trends of settlement in the region over 8000 years using a combination of survey databases to both north and south of the syrian turkish border and with a focus on the earlier phases of settlement from the neolithic until the end of the bronze age when carchemish became an outpost of the hittite empire the iron age is a period blessed by numerous historical records some of which can be traced in the modern landscape further chapters explore site specific aspects of the regional archaeology including a series of important sites on the sajur river some of which were positioned along the main campaign routes of the assyrian kings the close relationship between the nearby early bronze age site of tell jerablus tahtani and carchemish are examined and the results from the 40 ha carchemish outer town survey described providing important new data sources regarding the layout defenses and dates of occupation of this significant part of the city the classical roman byzantine and early islamic occupations are also discussed in
