The cold war was a period of geopolitical tension between the United States and the Soviet Union and their respective allies, the Western Bloc and the Eastern Bloc, that started in 1947, two years after the end of World War II, and lasted to 1991, the fall of the Soviet Union. The term "cold war" is a translation of the Russian word "Холодная война" (Kholodnaya Voina), which means "cold war". The cold war was waged on political, economic, and propaganda fronts and had only limited recourse to weapons.

The cold war was a division between Russia and Western countries, the US and its allies like Britain, which started in the 1940s and lasted until 1991. It is hard to say exactly when the cold war began, but it is generally accepted that it started in the 1940s. The cold war lasted nearly half a century. Here is a look at why it began, how it escalated, its legacy today, and why some analysts think another cold war is already underway.

The cold war was a period of geopolitical tension marked by competition and confrontation between communist nations led by the Soviet Union and Western democracies, including the United States and Britain. The cold war was an open yet restricted rivalry and hostility that developed after World War II between the US and the Soviet Union and their respective allies. The US and Britain were alarmed by the Soviet domination of Eastern Europe and feared the expansion of Soviet power and communism in Western Europe and elsewhere.

This is a timeline of the main events of the cold war, a state of political and military tension after World War II between powers in the Western Bloc (the United States, its NATO allies, and others) and powers in the Eastern Bloc (the Soviet Union, its allies in the Warsaw Pact, and later the People's Republic of China). The cold war between communist bloc nations and Western allies defined postwar politics. Learn about the Berlin Wall, the Cuban Missile Crisis, NATO, the Space Race, and more.
