passion for each other descriptions of approximately 16 000 agencies associations institutions publications and services intended to be a comprehensive guide to public and private agencies involved with medicine in for the most part the united states includes some international organizations and foreign publications excludes medical equipment suppliers testing laboratories and special clinics arrangement under 36 sections e g national and international associations poison control centers teaching hospitals and libraries and information centers each entry gives brief identifying information some sections have individual indexes whether seen as a land of opportunity or as paradise lost the american west took shape in the nation s imagination with the help of those who wrote about it but two groups who did much to shape that perception are often overlooked today promoters trying to lure settlers and investors to the west insisted that the frontier had already been tamed that the only frontiers remaining were those of opportunity through posters pamphlets newspaper articles and other printed pieces these boosters literally imagined places into existence by depicting backwater areas as settled culturally developed regions where newcomers would find none of the hardships associated with frontier life quick on their heels some of the west s original settlers had begun publishing their reminiscences in books and periodicals and banding together in pioneer societies to sustain their conception of frontier heritage their selective memory focused on the savage wilderness they had tamed exaggerating the past every bit as much as promoters exaggerated the present although they are generally seen today as unscrupulous charlatans and tellers of tall tales david wrobel reveals that these promoters and reminiscers were more significant than their detractors have suggested by exploring the vast literature produced by these individuals from the end of the civil war through the 1920s he clarifies the pivotal impact of their works on our vision of both the historic and mythic west in examining their role in forging both sense of place within the west and the nation s sense of the west as a place wrobel shows that these works were vital to the process of identity formation among westerners themselves and to the construction of a west in the national imagination wrobel also sheds light on the often elitist sometimes racist legacies of both groups through their characterizations of native americans african americans mexican americans and asian americans in the era wrobel examines promoters painted the future of each western place as if it were already present while the old timers preserved the past as if it were still present but as he also demonstrates that west has not really changed much promoters still tout its promise while old timers still try to preserve their selective memories even relatively recent western residents still tap into the region s mythic pioneer heritage as they form their attachments to place promised lands shows us that the west may well move into the twenty first century but our images of it are forever rooted in the nineteenth don t let the fear of disappointment keep you from having a hopeful heart at this time of climate crisis here is a practical christian ecospirituality it emerges from the pastoral and theological experience of reverend robert shore goss who worked with his congregation by making the earth a member of the church by greening worship and by helping the church building and operations attain a carbon neutral footprint shore goss explores an ecospirituality grounded in incarnational compassion practicing incarnational compassion means following the lived praxis of jesus and the commission of the risen christ as gardener jesus becomes the green face of god restrictive christian spiritualities that exclude the earth as an original blessing of god must expand this expansion leads to the realization that the incarnation of christ has deep roots in the earth and the fleshly or biological tissue of life this book aims to foster ecological conversation in churches and outlines the following practices for congregations meditating on nature inviting sermons on green topics covenanting with the earth and retrieving the natural elements of the sacraments these practices help us recover ourselves as fleshly members of the earth and the network of life if we fall in love with god s creation says shore goss we will fight against climate change issued 1976 77 with 3 statistical appendices whether seen as a land of opportunity or as paradise lost the american west took shape in the nation s imagination with the help of those who wrote about it but two groups who did much to shape that perception are often overlooked today promoters trying to lure settlers and investors to the west insisted that the frontier had already been tamed that the only frontiers remaining were those of opportunity through posters pamphlets newspaper articles and other printed pieces these boosters literally imagined places into existence by depicting backwater areas as settled culturally developed regions where newcomers would find none of the hardships associated with frontier life quick on their heels some of the west s original settlers had begun publishing their reminiscences in books and periodicals and banding together in pioneer societies to sustain their conception of frontier heritage their selective memory focused on the savage wilderness they had tamed exaggerating the past every bit as much as promoters exaggerated the present although they are generally seen today as unscrupulous charlatans and tellers of tall tales david wrobel reveals that these promoters and reminiscers were more significant than their detractors have suggested by exploring the vast literature produced by these individuals from the end of the civil war through the 1920s he clarifies the pivotal impact of their works on our vision of both the historic and mythic west in examining their role in forging both sense of place within the west and the nation s sense of the west as a place wrobel shows that these works were vital to the process of identity formation among westerners themselves and to the construction of a west in the national imagination wrobel also sheds light on the often elitist sometimes racist legacies of both groups through their characterizations of native americans african americans mexican americans and asian americans in the era wrobel examines promoters painted the future of each western place as if it were already present while the old timers preserved the past as if it were still present but as he also demonstrates that west has not really changed much promoters still tout its promise while old timers still try to preserve their selective memories even relatively recent western residents still tap into the region s mythic pioneer heritage as they form their attachments to place promised lands shows us that the west may well move into the twenty first century but our images of it are forever rooted in the nineteenth at this time of climate crisis here is a practical christian ecospirituality it emerges from the pastoral and theological experience of reverend robert shore goss who worked with his congregation by making the earth a member of the church by greening worship and by helping the church building and operations attain a carbon neutral footprint shore goss explores an ecospirituality grounded in incarnational compassion practicing incarnational compassion means following the lived praxis of jesus and the commission of the risen christ as gardener jesus becomes the green face of god restrictive christian spiritualities that exclude the earth as an original blessing of god must expand this expansion leads to the realization that the incarnation of christ has deep roots in the earth and the fleshly or biological tissue of life this book aims to foster ecological conversation in churches and outlines the following practices for congregations meditating on nature inviting sermons on green topics covenanting with the earth and retrieving the natural elements of the sacraments these practices help us recover ourselves as fleshly members of the earth and the network of life if we fall in love with god s creation says shore goss we will fight against climate change
