this book investigates the dynamic relationship between masculinity fiction and teaching answering one central question how are male teachers influenced by fictional narratives in the construction of masculinities within education it achieves this in three major steps by describing a methodological system of narrative analysis that is able to account for the influence of a fictional text alongside a reading of interview data by focusing on a specific cohort of male teachers in order to measure the influence of a fictional text and the literary tropes they contain both widening and restricting perceptions of teachers and teaching the book demonstrates how fictional narratives and their encompassing ideologies can become a powerful feaching the shaping of male teachers professional identities the book focuses on a collection of 22 fictional narratives drawn from the teacher text genre each text describes the world of teachers and teaching from differing perspectives in differing forms including literary texts dramatic works such as plays or musicals feature films and television and radio series the teacher text is a popular and prolific genre as part of the analysis the book pilots an innovative methodological process hat reconciles the structural and textual differences between fictional texts and interview data in an effort to find points of commonality and mutual influence stories of men and teaching reveals how teaching professionals utilise tropes found in fictional texts in chaotic and unstructured ways to manage points of professional intensity as they arise key features such as legacy fear belonging reparation and violence are identified as themes that occupy male teachers most when considering their own identity and professional performance and each is also represented in the fictional teacher text canon according to robert I smith the achievement gap separating black boys from just about everyone else springs from a powerful anti education culture rising in the black community parents who undervalue education and a mass media that peppers youth with the quick shallow rewards of hip hop lifestyle are steering alarming numbers of boys down a dead end path erik eckholm explained that terrible schools absent parents racism the decline in blue collar jobs and a subculture that glorifies swagger over work have all been cited as causes of the deepening ruin of black male youth they also appear to be a large part of the reason why nationwide the percentage of black male teachers is 2 4 percent according to the national education association in 2008 rather than becoming teachers bernard carver explained that a growing and alarming number of african american males are either become victims of negative circumstances e g dropping out of school at an early age being sent to penal institutions or succumbing to urban violence or becoming participants in activities that are counterproductive to their developments.

we shall examine the validity of 16 experimental designs against 12 common threats to valid inference by experiment we refer to that portion of research in which variables are manipulated and their effects upon other variables observed it is well to distinguish the particular role of this chapter it is not a chapter on experimental design in the fisher 1925 1935 tradition in which an experimenter having complete mastery can schedule treatments and measurements for optimal statistical efficiency with complexity of design emerging only from that goal of efficiency insofar as the designs discussed in the present chapter become complex it is because of the intransigency of the environment because that is of the experimenter s lack of complete control this book explores the relationship between violence and masculinity within schools there is a clear need to explore this relationship a substantial amount of evidence exists which demonstrates how boys are the major perpetrators of violence in schools from extreme acts of violence such as school shootings in the us to more common forms of schoolyard bullying and that both girls and boys are their victims the book suggests that violence has been masculinized in such a way that boys often perpetrate violence as a means of demonstrating their perception of what counts as a valued form of masculinity this masculinization of violence has often meant that girls experience violence from boys who are seeking to demonstrate their superiority over girls and it has also meant that some boys often experience violence due to their non conformity to dominant images of masculinity in order to support these arguments the book draws on extensive interview data collected from boys and teachers who were involved in anti violence programmes in their schools
