This book explores previously unexamined overlaps between the poetic imagination and the medical mind. It shows how appreciation of poetry can help us to engage with medicine in more intense ways based on defamiliarising old habits and bringing poetic forms of close reading to the clinic. Bleakley and Neilson carry out an extensive critical examination of the well-established practices of narrative medicine to show that non-narrative lyrical poetry does a different kind of work previously unexamined such as place eclipsing time. They articulate a groundbreaking lyrical medicine that promotes aesthetic, ethical and political practices as well as noting the often concealed metaphor cache of biomedicine demonstrating that ambiguity is a key resource in both poetry and medicine. The authors anatomise poetic and medical practices as forms of extended and situated cognition grounded in close readings of singular contexts. They illustrate structural correspondences between poetic diction and clinical thinking such as use of sound and metaphor. This provocative examination of the meaningful overlap between poetic and clinical work is an essential read for researchers and practitioners interested in extending the reach of medical and health humanities, narrative medicine, medical education and English literature.

This companion provides new ways of reading a wide range of influential women's poetry. Leading international scholars offer insights on a century of writers drawing out the special function of poetry and the poets' use of language, whether it is concerned with the relationship between verbal and visual art, experimental poetics, war, landscape, history, cultural identity or confessional lyrics. Collectively, the chapters cover well-established and less familiar poets from Edith Sitwell and Mina Loy through Stevie Smith, Sylvia Plath and Elizabeth Jennings to Anne Stevenson, Eavan Boland and Jo Shapcott. They also include poets at the forefront of poetry trends such as Liz Lochhead, Jackie Kay, Patience Agbabi, Caroline Bergvall, Medbh McGuckian and Carol Ann Duffy. With a chronology and guide to further reading, this book is aimed at students and poetry enthusiasts wanting to deepen their knowledge of some of the finest modern poets.

Poetry is dead, poetry is all around us. Both are trite truisms that this book exploits and challenges. In his 1798 advertisement to Lyrical Ballads, William Wordsworth anticipates that readers accustomed to the poetic norms of the day might not recognize his experiments as poems and might signal their awkward confusion upon opening the book by looking round for poetry as if seeking it elsewhere. Look Round for Poetry transforms Wordsworth's idiomatic expression into a methodological charge by placing tropes and figures common to Romantic and post-Romantic poems in conjunction with contemporary economic, technological and political discourse. Look Round for Poetry identifies poetry's untimely echoes in discourses not always read as poetry or not always read poetically. Once one begins looking round for poetry, McGrath insists, one might discover it in some surprising contexts. In chapters that spring from poems by Wordsworth, Lucille Clifton, John Keats and Percy Bysshe Shelley, McGrath reads poetic examples of understatement alongside market demands for more the downturned brow as a figure for economic catastrophe, Romantic cloud metaphors alongside the rhetoric of cloud computing, the election of the dead as a poetical and not just a political act and poetic investigations into the power of prepositions as theories of political assembly. For poetry to retain a vital power, McGrath argues, we need to become ignorant of what we think we mean by it. In the process, we may discover critical vocabularies that engage the complexity of social life all around us.
