ZHUANG ZHOU (c. 4th century BCE) commonly known as Zhuangzi (庄子), a Chinese philosopher who lived around the 4th century BCE during the Warring States period. He is the pivotal figure in classical philosophical Daoism. The Zhuangzi is a compilation of his and others' writings at the pinnacle of the philosophically subtle classical period in China. He is also known as Chuang Chou, the most brilliant of the early Taoists and the greatest prose writer of his time. Not much is known of the life of Chuang Tzu. He was born c. 369 BCE in Mengzhou, Henan province, China, and died c. 286 BCE. He was one of the earliest interpreters of Daoism whose work is considered one of the definitive texts of Daoism and is thought to be more comprehensive than the Daodejing, which is attributed to Laozi. The Zhuangzi, also known in Wade-Giles romanization as Chuang Tzu, named after Master Chuang, was along with the Laozi one of the earliest texts to contribute to the philosophy that has come to be known as Daojia or School of the Way. The Zhuangzi Chinese text is an ancient Chinese text that is one of the two foundational texts of Daoism alongside the Tao Te Ching. It was written during the late Warring States period (476-221 BCE) and is named for its traditional author, Chuang Zhou (c. 4th century BCE). Chuang Tzu, also called Nanhua Zhenjing, Chinese Master Chuang or Chuang Zhou, flourished in the 4th century BCE. He is known for his intuitionism, skepticism, and dogmatic monism. His work has practical implications. Chuang Tzu, Chuang Chou (c. 360 BCE), along with Lao Tzu, is a defining figure in Chinese Taoism. Chuang Tzu probably authored only parts of the first 7 chapters of the present text, the so-called inner chapters. He was the sage who stood apart from all others in Chinese history. He was a unique presence, a great mind like no one before or since. The name Chuang Tzu, Zhuangzi, in the Pinyin system means Master Chuang. His full name was Chuang Chou, Zhuang Zhou, and he lived about 2,400 years ago during the Warring States period. Zhuangzi, or Chuang Tzu, born c. 369 BCE in Mengzhou, China, died c. 286 BCE. He was the most significant early Chinese interpreter of Daoism and the purported author of the Daoist classic that bears his name, a minor official and a contemporary of Mencius. He drew on the sayings of Laozi but took a broader perspective.
