equally important to the success of a business is the ability to measure specific, measurable, attainable, relevant, and time-bound goals. This is often referred to as the SMART criteria. The acronym SMART stands for Specific, Measurable, Attainable, Relevant, and Time-bound. These are the five key elements of a goal that is likely to be successful. Specific goals are clear and focused. Measurable goals can be quantified. Attainable goals are realistic and achievable. Relevant goals are meaningful and aligned with the organization's mission.
