10 Keys to Financial Freedom 2015-08-16 five years ago aged 43 my wife julie and i retired from our corporate jobs we d re engineered our lives to enable us to travel endlessly if we wanted to without needing to ever work again

this book explains how we and others like us have managed this unusual feat for two decades of work i thought the only way to regain my freedom from the 9 to 5 was to become an entrepreneur i was wrong i wracked my brains trying to think up a viral smartphone app or perhaps a new import business which would magically create all the income i needed freeing me from the commute office politics and the invisible elastic which stopped me escaping for more than two weeks at a time i failed it was only when we decided to quit and travel anyway living on our savings for two years that the answer was finally revealed to me i wasn't cut out as an entrepreneur but that's ok it turned out there's another way a far more reliable way the way of the non-trepreneur we changed the way we saw ourselves in society we simplified our lives reducing what we owned and deliberately living in smaller spaces we dedicated time and energy to learn about investing we read books and blogs to help us better understand ourselves what fears we had and what motivated us we swam against the tide of opinion the end result for us was self-determination the ability to do what we want when we want for as long as we want we can travel we can read or write we can help others around us we can run up mountains or lie on the beach our lives are our own our hope for this book is simple that it helps you to achieve a similar goal thanks and the best of luck jason and julie
