board hunt and the slaughter of the niobids funerary sculpture is the first volume on sculpture from the agora in over 50 years bringing together all the sculpted funerary monuments of the athenian agora classical through roman periods which were discovered during excavation from 1931 through 2009 the wide chronological span allows the author to trace changes in funerary monuments particularly the break in customs that took place in 317 b c and the revival of figured monuments in the roman period the study consists of three essays followed by a catalogue of 389 objects the author places the agora sculptural fragments within the greater context of attic funerary sculpture moving from a general to a specific treatment of the funerary sculpture the first essay is an overview of the study of attic types of sculpture the second discusses the specific features of funerary sculpture from athens and attica and the third examines the characteristics of the funerary sculptures found in the agora thereby forming an introduction to the catalogue that follows the catalogue includes stelai and naiskoi with female and or male figures sirens decorative anthemia funerary vessels lekythoi loutrophoroi animals mensa columnar monuments and more there are separate indexes of museums names demes places and findspots as well as a general index on december 2 1863 a bronze statue was placed atop the dome of the united states capitol standing more than 19 feet tall the figure called freedom was designed and created during a period of great turmoil in american history but at one point during the

it wasn't clear the statue would even get to its final destination one man in particular played an important role in seeing the statue through to completion his name was philip reid born into slavery reid grew up on a south carolina farm helping various craftsmen such as the blacksmith and the potter eventually he was sold to a man named clark mills who opened a foundry in washington d c mills's foundry was contracted to cast the freedom statue but the project was jeopardized when a seemingly unsolvable puzzle arose and it was philip reid who stepped in to solve it this documents the distinguished collection of european art from the late eighteenth through the early twentieth centuries that forms a significant part of the collections belonging to the museum of art rhode island school of design this book includes stunning canvases by gericault delacroix degas manet monet cezanne renoir picasso and matisse what makes the collection so noteworthy are the extraordinary works by unknown artists and the unknown works by known artists the world that shaped europe's first national sculptor celebrities from schadow to david d'angers from flaxman to gibson from canova to thorvaldsen was the city of rome until around 1800 the holy see effectively served as europe's cultural capital and roman sculptors found themselves at the intersection of the italian marble trade grand tour expenditure the cult of the classical male nude and the enlightenment republic of letters two sets of visitors to rome the david circle and the british traveler have tended to dominate rome's image as an open artistic hub where the chapter community of sculptors of mixed origins has not been awarded similar attention. Rome travel and the sculpture capital c. 1770-1825 is the first study to piece together the labyrinthine sculptors world of Rome between 1770 and 1825. The volume sheds new light on the links connecting neo-classicism, sculpture, collecting, enlightenment aesthetics, studio culture and queer studies. The collection offers ideal introductory reading on sculpture and Rome around 1800, but its combination of provocative perspectives is sure to appeal to a readership interested in understanding a modernized Europe's overwhelmingly transnational desire for neo-classical Roman sculpture. For the first time, this publication comprehensively documents and analyzes the Greek and Roman statuary discovered to date in the greater area of Syria. The text portion describes nearly all monuments in detail and classifies them in the context of the history of ancient sculpture. The associated volume of plates documents every item in detail, typically with four photographic views. This first complete published catalogue of one of the most important classical sculpture collections in the United States includes 154 works from Italy, Greece, Cyprus, Asia Minor, North Africa, Roman Syria, and Palestine, Egypt, and Babylonia, ranging in date from the late seventh century B.C. to the fourth century A.D. Each piece receives a complete description with measurements and report of condition, a list of the previous published sources, and a commentary reflecting the most recent scholarship, along with extensive photographic documentation.

audiences will appreciate the accessibility of the scholarship presented here students may engage in further study on some of topics raised by individual pieces or groups of sculptures and the scholarly community will welcome a work that provides an up to date and comprehensive examination of a significant classical sculpture collection in one of the world s great archaeology museums this book offers a new approach to the history of greek portraiture by focusing on portraits without names comprehensively illustrated it brings together a wide range of evidence that has never before been studied as a group sheila dillon considers the few original bronze and marble portrait statues preserved from the classical and hellenistic periods together with the large number of greek portraits known only through roman copies in focusing on a series of images that have previously been ignored dillon investigates the range of strategies and modes utilized in these portraits to construct their subject s identity her methods undermine two basic tenets of greek portraiture first that is was only in the late hellenistic period under roman influence that greek portraits exhibited a wide range of styles including descriptive realism and second that in most cases one can easily tell a subject s public role that is whether he is a philosopher or an orator from the visual traits used in this portrait the sculptures studied here instead show that the proliferation of portrait styles takes place much earlier in the late classical period and that the identity encoded in these portraits is much more complex and layered than end of chapter
