The Great Battle, Fought at Manassas 1861 the stakes for George Gordon Meade could not have been higher after his stunning victory at Gettysburg in July of 1863 the Union commander spent the following months trying to bring the Army of Northern Virginia to battle once more and finish the job the Confederate army robbed of much of its offensive strength nevertheless Meade's moves time after time although the armies remained in constant contact during those long months of cavalry clashes quick maneuvers and sudden skirmishes Lee continued to frustrate Meade's efforts meanwhile in Washington D.C. Meade's political enemies launched an all-out assault against his reputation and generalship even the very credibility of his victory at Gettysburg came under assault pressure mounted for the Army commander to score a decisive victory and prove himself once more smaller victories like those at Bristoe Station and Rappahannock Station did little to quell the growing clamor particularly because out west in Chattanooga another Union general Ulysses S. Grant was once again reversing Federal misfortunes Meade needed a comparable victory in the east and so on Thanksgiving Day 1863 the Army of the Potomac rumbled into motion once more intent on trying again to bring about the great battle that would end the war the Great Battle Never Fought the Mine Run Campaign November 26 December 2 1863 recounts the final chapter of the forgotten fall of 1863 when George Gordon Meade made one final attempt to save the Union and in doing so save himself
