interest to morgan is the gradual process by which humans organized into civil societies examining a range of contrasting civilizations from the mayans to arrive at commonalities in how these peoples went from a primitive and barbaric early existence to a relatively civilized height whereupon their greatest achievements left their mark for the author human civilization progressed in three broad stages savagery wherein hunter gatherer behaviors crude language and inbreeding is prevalent barbarism wherein the first centralized settlements and signs of organizational military and political hierarchy appear and civilization where humans are at their most organized and capable of great advances in science wealth ancient complex societies examines the archaeological evidence for the rise and functioning of politically and socially complex cultures in antiquity particular focus is given to civilizations exhibiting positions of leadership social and administrative hierarchies emerging and already developed complex religious systems and economic differentiation case studies are drawn from around the globe including asia the mediterranean region and the american continents using case studies from africa polynesia and north america discussion is dedicated to identifying what complex means and when it should be applied to ancient systems each chapter attempts to not only explore the sociopolitical and economic elements of ancient civilizations but to also present an overview of what life was like for the crime and punishment criminal law and its administration are areas of ancient history that have been explored less than many other aspects of ancient civilizations throughout history women have been affected by crime both as victims and as offenders yet in the ancient world customary laws were created by men formal laws were written by men and both were interpreted and enforced by men
