sustainable industrial engineering addresses the sustainability issue from economic environmental and social points of view its application fields are the whole value chain and lifecycle of products services from the development to the end of life stages this book aims to address many of the challenges faced by industrial organizations and supply chains to become more sustainable through reinventing their processes and practices by continuously incorporating sustainability guidelines and practices in their decisions such as circular economy collaboration with suppliers and customers using information technologies and systems tracking their products life cycle using optimization methods to reduce resource use and to apply new management paradigms to help mitigate many of the wastes that exist across organizations and supply chains this book will be of interest to the fast growing body of academics studying and researching sustainability as well as to industry managers involved in sustainability management this book provides an insightful sociological study of the shrinking japanese population through a regional variation perspective as it varies significantly by municipality even within the same prefecture using demographic data on municipal levels the book identifies the power unique to each municipality which can mobilize a shrinking but sustainable japan the study identifies the principal explanatory factors based on the small area data of e stat through gps statistical software tools such as g census and evacva within a historical perspective the theoretical framework of this study i e the reason for regional variations in japan is the goki shichido five home provinces and seven circuits of ancient japan this historical knowledge helps in understanding the significance of the regional cultural heritage that remains in each municipality today the book pays special attention to municipal variations within the same prefecture utilizing a completely unique approach unlike those that have been pursued by other researchers this volume studies two present day prefectures for detailed analyses based on the goki shichido framework for impacts of regional variations of population decline in japan they are niigata prefecture made up of the formerly named echigo and sado provinces ishikawa prefecture formed by the ancient kaga and noto provinces fukui prefecture based on the earlier wakasa and echizen provinces of the hokurikudo nagano prefecture still called shinano province today and commonly divided into four areas and ten regions and gifu prefecture composed of the ancient mino and hida provinces of the tosando as examples of the impact of municipal power on regional variations of shrinking japan however due to the limitation of the number of pages set forth for springer briefs in population studies population studies of japan for which the current publication is a part it has become necessary to divide the book into two volumes namely volume i and volume ii because of this limitation the current volume i is consisted of three chapters namely chapter 1 issues theoretical framework and methodology chapter 2 niigata prefecture in the hokurikudo and chapter 3 ishikawa prefecture in the hokurikudo the remaining three prefectures i e fukui in the hokurikudo area nagano and gifu both in the tosando area will be discussed in the volume ii of this book by presenting unique analyses of regional variations on small municipal levels with demographic variables social indicators and historical identities this book offers suggestions for effective regional policies to revitalize a shrinking japan to a sustainable one the volume i therefore analyzes and discusses in detail both niigata and ishikawa prefectures of the hokurikudo for uni directional fibrous composites and laminated composites a heat balance integral method has been developed for the analysis of transient heat flow along the fibers or in the plane of laminates the method is based on the construction of for the two constituent media temperature profiles which not only satisfy the necessary boundary conditions but also fulfill the asymptotic error function properties when inter region conduction is vanishingly small or at very early times of the heat transient this research monograph focuses on a biomolecular separation process that occurs within most cells two types of molecules receptors and ligands are separated and routed along different intracellular pathways this is a critical step in the process of receptor mediated endocytosis the development of an understanding of the basic mechanisms of this separation process is presented with an emphasis on discovering the fundamental and measurable parameters that influence the event mathematical models of sorting are evaluated to predict the range of possible outcomes these are compared with a variety of experimental data on different receptor ligand systems in addition the influence of the separation on overall receptor ligand processing dynamics is discussed the book is intended for both biomathematicians and biologists it is not necessary to understand the details of the model equations and their solution in order to test the models experimentally the analysis suggests experiments that might be done to further investigate the sorting process and the text details methods for analyzing these experimental results
