studies on the Derveni papyrus volume II brings together two new editions of the first fragmentarily extant columns of the Derveni papyrus and seven scholarly articles devoted to their interpretation. The Derveni papyrus is by far the most important textual discovery of the 20th century regarding early Greek philosophy, religion, exegetical theory and practice, linguistic ideas and a host of other areas and issues. But the editorial and interpretative history of this extraordinary document has been very checkered, while the interpretation of the better preserved later columns is still highly controversial in many regards. At least the text of those columns has by and large found a scholarly consensus, but the editorial and interpretative situation with the worse preserved first columns is quite different. This volume offers not one but two editions of the first columns, by Richard Janko and by Valeria Piano. Given that it is not currently possible to agree upon a single edition, it explains clearly and in detail the papyrological problems and doubts that lead to these two editions, making it possible for readers, even non-papyrologists, to form their own informed judgment about the most likely readings to be adopted. Furthermore, it contains a number of articles by leading scholars on the Derveni papyrus, above all offering original solutions to the question of the relation between the earlier and the later columns, but also providing analysis and interpretation of other related problems.

As global warming and species migration become more prevalent issues, there is an urgent need for a text that provides comprehensive taxonomic details and geographic distributions of Dacinae fruit flies within South East Asia. In particular, some of the major pest species of this region are being introduced on a regular basis to new geographical areas, causing widespread food security issues and economic hardship. Quarantine and horticultural organizations require detailed information on these fruit fly species in order to detect and eradicate any new incursions. This major new reference work details the taxonomic research into the subfamily Dacinae, which contains the tropical fruit flies of south east asia as well as many other regions of the world while focusing on south east asian fauna all known species are included through a study of the type material available in museums around the world specimens collected in major surveys conducted across asia from 1983 to present have also been used to ensure a complete in depth review of this subfamily providing complete descriptions and artwork of all species of dacinae recorded from the south east asian region for the first time this book is written and illustrated by experts with over 80 years combined research experience areas covered include india bhutan nepal sri lanka myanmar china taiwan japan the philippines palau vietnam thailand singapore malaysia and indonesia it is an essential reference for departments of agriculture researchers and students of entomology and quarantine horticultural and chemical industry personnel worldwide key features 120 recently discovered species 500 detailed drawings revision of all known species updated geographical distributions and host records accurate list and detailed information of all known pest species this book will be followed by keys to fruit flies of south east asia
