The SAGE Handbook of Marketing Ethics 2020-07-16 corporate social responsibility CSR of corporations is a trend today however the more companies are practicing it the less it becomes a unique business strategy helping to differentiate from competitors for that reason this study examines whether an integration of customers in all decisions and or the carrying out of different csr activities leads to it being a more effective marketing strategy in the conceptual part a definition of csr is given different approaches are presented reaching from a more detailed one dealing with economic legal ethical and discretionary responsibilities according to the pyramid of csr to a less specific one which is taken as the basis of the paper key characteristics of csr as well as different motivations exemplified in the normative and the business case are described and a critical evaluation of csr is taken into consideration by means of the shareholder view of csr and the stakeholder theory moreover csr in germany is compared with csr in america in order to give a global perspective of the csr phenomenon furthermore the most common csr activities are introduced from those cause related marketing employee volunteering and corporate philanthropy are detailed with real company examples and respective advantages and disadvantages because those are the activities used in the study a review of appropriate literature is given and for customer related outcomes social identity theory attribution theory and behavioral decision theory are regarded the concept of customer integration has been adopted from the product innovation process called open innovation to csr by using the means end theory and the empowerment strategy taken together the hypotheses have been development stating that customer integration leads to a more positive csr belief a stronger identification with the respective company as well as a more positive company evaluation and a much higher intent to buy the corporation s product these hypotheses have been tested in an online experiment using a fictive company and data has been evaluated via the analysis of variance the study clarifies that customer integration is neither necessary nor does it hurt it combines both a marketing tool and at the same time does something good so when taking into consideration some aspects it is a strategy worth doing with or without customer taking part in it
